March of Events
Another Pact
Another Trust
Smallpox in China

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

TROTZKY, telling Mr. Ochs at considerable length just what happened to him, describes his downfall and exile as "la marche des evenements"—march of events. He might [illegible] have described his troubles as [illegible] to "la faible [illegible]" — [illegible] result.

Trotzky [illegible] hold his place [illegible] strength to hold it [illegible] power. If Lenin lived he would [illegible] power and Trotzky [illegible] would have continued [illegible] the Russian army which he [illegible].

* * *

Trotzky's statement that Stalin and [illegible] leaders that exiled [illegible] and his friends are leaning to [illegible]—that is, toward conservatism and capitalism—will interest America's conservative government. Stalin, intelligent Russian, knows that power without money is a sham, [illegible] so he turns in the direction of [illegible].

* * *

REVELATION of a war agreement between France and Belgium disturbs the innocent British, but it doesn't disturb this country. We are willing to put our fingers [illegible] the crack of any door, trusting to prudence to prevent the door [illegible].

The Germans are excited about the French-Belgian war pact that, according to rumor, would compel one of the two nations to join the other in any fight against Germany. This interesting revelation should [illegible] our government that [illegible] George Washington knew what he was talking about when he advised the United States to keep out of European affairs.

* * *

THE French have discovered an oil trust with Britain and the United States combining to control producing fields all over the world, to the detriment of France. American oil stock and oil well owners would like to know who runs that trust and why it doesn't do something to prevent the squandering [illegible].

A widespread outbreak of smallpox adds to China's other troubles. The Chinese, more intelligent than the Americans, appreciate the importance of vaccination and have designated March 1 next as national vaccination day. Ignorance still opposes vaccination in spite of the fact that what was once the most dreaded of all diseases has ceased to be important in civilized countries.

* * *

When Voltaire's friend Catherine of Russia was inoculated with vaccine from the arm of a little boy, she called that boy "Duke of Smallpox." Every other face was disfigured by smallpox marks. If smallpox deaths were now what they were then, a city like Chicago would be fortunate if it escaped with 50,000 deaths from smallpox a year.

MR. NICHOLS, Kansas City real estate man, said he would be willing to buy a picture by Leonardo da Vinci if certain of its genuineness. Do anything else in reason to help the city of which he is so proud.

Kansas City almost bought a Leonardo da Vinci that, according to Joseph Duveen, Leonardo himself never saw.

* * *

Fortunately Kansas City can struggle along without the help of Leonardo as long as factories develop, real estate goes up in value and packing houses operate.

[illegible] Colonel Coates, who built a [illegible] class hotel in Kansas City more than half a century ago, the Dickey brothers, who drove their big bunches of steers to the Kansas City stock yards, and the boats that stopped at Kansas City's landing on the way to St. Louis and New Orleans did more for Kansas City than could be done by all the painters that ever lived. First wealth, then art at your leisure, and no hurry about art.

CALL money cost 9 per cent yesterday, but Wall Street permitted no cheerfulness, with stocks going up. Steel strong. Copper high, with the price of copper metal rising in price. [illegible] stocks went up.

It is hard to discourage those that believe in the future of American [illegible].

The Tampa Daily Times cheerfully [illegible] Florida state announces that 38,000 solid carloads of [illegible] and vegetables have been [illegible] north and that is less than [illegible] season's crop. [illegible] shipments include more than [illegible] carloads of citrus fruit.

* * *

Fisher, who has done a great [illegible] for Florida, writes from Miami [illegible] crowds here at hotels, in private houses and on houseboats have [illegible] been so great in Florida's history.

The stream of automobiles flowing [illegible] compares with the flocks of [illegible] pigeons that once darkened [illegible].

ENCH FLIERS CRASH NEAR BANGKOK, INDIA

[illegible], Feb. 27—The French fliers [illegible] and Lefevre crashed in their [illegible] about 120 miles from Bangkok, while making the Rangoon to Bangkok hop of their flight from [illegible] to Saigon, French Indo-China, according to dispatches received here. The dispatches stated that [illegible] escaped injury.

50-CENT AUTO LICENSE FEE FACES DRIVERS

Senate Passes Nickels Bill and Sends It to House for Action

BRINGS IN $700,000

Cleveland Senator Leads Fight on Measure and Land Taxation

COLUMBUS, Feb. 27—Every auto driver in the state will be forced to pay an annual fee of 50 cents for a driver's license if the Nickels bill passed by the senate yesterday receives the same treatment in the lower house of the legislature and becomes an Ohio law.

Under original provisions of the bill a dollar fee would have been required but an amendment accepted by the upper house reduced this to 50 cents—35 for the examination for the driving license and 15 cents for the issuance of the license certificate.

The bill passed by a vote of 19 to 8 after a long floor fight among the solons in which 16 of the 27 senators present took part.

Bender Leads Attack

Passage of the Gillen bill by the senate which recodifies the law on criminal procedure also occupied a portion of the limelight. It is 140 pages long and most of its changes are technical revamping of the laws as they now stand. The bill goes to the house.

Sen. George H. Bender, Cleveland, who led the attack on the Nickels drivers license measure, charged that it was placing an additional tax burden on motorists and asked "when are we going to stop picking the feathers off the motorists?"

Sen. W. G. Nickels, sponsor of the bill, replied by saying that it would reduce reckless driving and the number of automobile accidents besides reducing automobile liability insurance premiums.

Approximately $700,000 yearly will be added to the state revenue if it becomes a law, it was estimated.

Power for Justices

It was pointed out that the bill as it now stands will give justices of the peace broader powers inasmuch as one clause of the bill allows revocation of the license of a person for violation of the state or municipal auto laws. Furthermore it was declared the measure allows the sentencing of persons by justices of the peace and the right to revoke the license, thereby prohibiting the person from the right of driving for a year.

Features of the bill as it was passed by the senate are briefly:

No person shall be allowed to drive an auto in Ohio unless he holds a l

FILIBUSTER STORM TO SWEEP SENATE

Congress Dying on Its Feet, Leaders Push Bills to Vote

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27—The seventieth congress appeared to be dying on its feet today with every likelihood of being strangled by filibusters during its final hour.

The legislative record apparently has been written with the possible exception of a few non-controversial measures. Beginning tomorrow there was every indication a storm of filibusters will sweep the senate to last until the gavels of the vice president and the speaker toll the end of another congress. Administration leaders aware of this threat were concentrating their efforts on enacting as many bills as possible before the anticipated verbal marathons bring congressional business to a halt.

A dozen major and minor filibusters were held in reserve in the senate. Its program was topped by a conference report on the naval appropriations bill which carries funds for building the new cruisers and by the Glass marketing bill. Once these measures are out of the way the fireworks will begin.

In the house the situation was entirely different. Three measures were pending there which leaders hope to enact before adjournment. These were the resolution providing for a narcotic investigation, the Jones bill providing five-year prison terms for bootleggers and the Edge resolution for a survey of the proposed Nicaraguan canal.

BANDITS LOOT BANK IN VILLAGE, ESCAPE

$2,000 in Cash Obtained at Hicksville by Four Men

DEFIANCE, Feb. 27—Four armed bandits today held up the Hicksville National bank at Hicksville near here, scooped up $2,000 in cash and fled in a waiting high-powered sedan.

The alarm was immediately spread. According to reports reaching here, the bandits' car struck another machine west of Harlan, Ind., just over the Ohio border and was ditched. The reports said that the bandits commandeered another auto and made good their escape from the scene.

Two employes were in the bank at the time of the hold up.

COMEDIAN ILL

CHARLIE CHAPLIN

RELAPSE SUFFERED BY CHARLIE CHAPLIN

Doctor's Statement Causes Much Anxiety in Hollywood Picture Colony

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Feb. 27—Suffering from the effects of ptomaine poisoning, Charles Chaplin, famous screen comedian, experienced a relapse today.

His physician, Dr. Cecil Reynolds, was hurriedly summoned to the palatial Chaplin residence. Following an examination he issued the following statement:

Mr. Chaplin's condition is uncomfortable. His temperature rose shortly before midnight.

The doctor's statement occasioned more anxiety over the eminent comedian's condition than at any time since Chaplin was stricken with the attack last Monday.

Indicating the existence of an emergency, all methods of communication between the Chaplin household and the outside world have been temporarily severed. Guards have been stationed around the big home. Telephones have been disconnected.

Rigid seclusion for the noted comedian has been ordered by his physicians.

HOUSE CLEARS WAY FOR HIGH FINE BILL

Wets Abandon Plans for Organized Fight on Jones Measure

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27—The way was cleared in the house today for passage of the Jones bill raising the maximum penalty for violation of the Volstead act to five years imprisonment and $10,000 fine.

The wets have abandoned plans for an organized fight on it.

After having been refused a hearing on the measure by the judiciary committee, the wet bloc apparently decided that it was impossible to stop the measure and decided to leave opposition to the individual action of its members.

Representative Linthicum, Democrat, of Maryland, chairman of the unofficial committee against the prohibition amendment in the house, declared that he would vote against it but that the bill would be passed by a big majority.

The measure was scheduled to be called up by Representative Snell, Republican, of New York, chairman of the rules committee and to be passed after an hour's general debate.

Although some drys were said to regard the measure as too drastic, leaders in the fight for more stringent dry enforcement were prepared to throw their whole weight behind the measure.

ASKS FOR SALE OF PACKING CO. PLANT

Application Filed in Court by Receiver, Appraised at $188,838

Application to sell the Marion Packing Co. plant at public sale has been made in common pleas court.

The application was filed today by Henry B. Hane, receiver, who has had charge of the idle plant since it was thrown into the hands of the receiver more than a year ago.

According to the application the plant and equipment is valued at [illegible]. Hane states in his application that he has been unable to find a buyer for the plant during the period of the receivership that would justify its disposition at private sale.

As receiver Hane is represented by Attorney W. N. Harder.

BAILIFF WINS FIRST ROUND IN SALARY SUIT

Kenton Judge Upholds Writ Issued Against County Auditor

SETS LEGAL POINT

Hoge Rules That Judges, Not Commissioners, Control Salary Fixing

Common pleas judges and not boards of county commissioners have authority to set the salaries of court bailiffs, ruled Judge Hamilton E. Hoge of Kenton this afternoon in the mandamus action brought by Joseph M. Justice against County Auditor Earl E. Thomas.

The ruling was given by Judge Hoge when he found in favor of a writ of mandamus issued last Monday by Judge George H. Scofield of the Marion county common pleas court against County Auditor Earl E. Thomas. The writ was issued shortly after Justice, common pleas court bailiff, started mandamus action against Thomas to force him to pay the $200 monthly salary allowed the bailiff by Judge Scofield.

The writ issued by Judge Scofield ordered Thomas to recognize Justice's vouchers for $200 for salary for January. Judge Hoge's ruling upholds the writ of mandamus.

Since Jan. 1 Justice has been serving as court constable and criminal court bailiff of the Marion county common pleas court by appointment of Judge Scofield. Justice was allowed a salary of $1,200 a year for each position, making a total salary of $2,400. In making the appropriation of county funds for 1929, however, the board of county commissioners set aside only $1,800 as the yearly salary for the two posts.

Auditor Refuses Payment

The mandamus action against Thomas was brought by Justice after the auditor refused to recognize the bailiff's salary vouchers for January calling for a total payment of $200, or $100 for each position. Thomas refused to make the $200 payment on the ground that he was allowed to pay only one twelfth of the appropriation as salary for any one month.

Thomas was named defendant in the suit as a technical move on the part of Justice's attorney to force the commissioners to make their appropriation for the salary meet the salary allotted by Judge Scofield.

Justice is represented in the action by Attorney J. Malcolm Strelitz of the law firm of Guthery, Strelitz & Guthery. Alfred Donithen, prosecuting attorney, represents the county auditor.

Wins Important Point

Strelitz won a major point in the contest at the close of the testimony when Judge Hoge ruled in regard to arguments to be presented by the attorneys. Judge Hoge ruled that he was not interested in whether the commissioners set aside a certain sum for the court bailiff's salary. That, he ruled, was beyond the power of the commissioners. He held that the commissioners had authority only to

COLLEGE GIRLS' CAR WRECKED BY TRAIN

Marion Student One of Six in Narrow Escape from Death Near Ashley

Miss Helen Deal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Deal, Baker st., a student at Ohio Wesleyan university, Delaware, was one of six students from the university who narrowly escaped death when the car in which they were riding stalled on the Big Four railroad crossing at Ashley Tuesday morning and was struck by a southbound passenger train.

The accident happened as the girls were enroute to Ashley where they were to spend the day in practice teaching. The machine was demolished.

Aside from Miss Deal, occupants of the car were Miss Jenny May Daugherty, owner and driver of the car, Mary C. Barnes, Newark, Vera Meyer, Cleveland, Jeanette Hilker, Lake Forest, Ill., and Dorothy Jones, Ridgeway, all seniors at the university.

The girls were apparently paralyzed with fear when they sighted the train as it was nearly upon them. Miss Deal was the first to crawl out of the car and the others were hauled from the machine by a rural mail carrier just a few seconds before the crash.

TO DIE IN CHAIR

John Sabo's Conviction Upheld by Ohio Supreme Court

COLUMBUS, Feb. 27—John Sabo of Akron must die in the electric chair at the state penitentiary here for the murder of Burton C. Painter, whom he shot to death at Akron in May, 1926, the Ohio supreme court ruled today in upholding the judgment of the Summit county court.

The supreme court will later fix the date of the electrocution, having previously granted an indefinite stay of the original sentence, pending final disposition of Sabo's appeal.

In confirming the judgment of the lower court, the higher tribunal ruled that the common pleas court had no jurisdiction to hear or grant a motion for a new trial on the ground of newly-discovered evidence.

FLOOD WATERS RISE

600 Ohioans are Homeless

STATE DAMAGE WILL AMOUNT TO $3,000,000

Transportation and Communication Crippled and in Some Places Disrupted

RAIN IS FORECAST

Springfield Hardest Hit, with Buck Creek Out of Its Banks

COLUMBUS, Feb. 27—More than 600 people are homeless, property damage is expected to exceed $3,000,000, transportation and communication are crippled and in some places disrupted as the results of the torrential rains over the central part of Ohio Tuesday night which caused many streams to leave their banks and go on the rampage, according to a checkup today.

Flood dangers still loom as the result of the governmental forecast which predicted rain for tomorrow.

Springfield was the hardest hit section of the state. Buck Creek broke from its banks, forced more than 200 persons in its valley to flee their homes and did property damage that is expected to approximate $1,500,000.

Newark Is Hit

The Mad river left its banks near Dayton and flooded 200 homes, causing their occupants to vacate. They were cared for last night at the Y. M. C. A. headquarters and the Union Settlement building at Dayton and money was taken from the Gem City community chest to provide for them.

Newark suffered heavily from the rising waters of four adjacent streams when they inundated the lowlands, marooned 77 persons who were afterwards rescued by police and firemen and caused a property loss of nearly $500,000.

Other sections of the Buckeye state, though reporting flooded roads and swamped lowlands, escaped the brunt of the floods. The Muskingum river did not threaten to reach the flood stage today. Other central Ohio

ELECTROCUTED AS HE DRAINS WATER

MASSILLON, Feb. 27—William B. Lee, proprietor of a restaurant here, was electrocuted today when he attempted to start an electric pump to drain flood waters from the basement under his restaurant.

Lee went to the basement when the flood waters threatened to rise above the floor level of his lunch room. He threw the switch which would have turned on the pump. A short circuit was set up by the wet equipment and Lee fell dead.

Five Huge Dams Save Dayton Today

DAYTON, Feb. 27—A gigantic conservancy system consisting of five mammoth dams built after the 1913 flood, in which several hundred persons in this district lost their lives, today had saved this city and the Miami Valley from a recurrence of a similar flood.

While many cities and towns in central Ohio were threatened with serious loss due to high waters occasioned by the tropical-like downpour Monday night, Dayton and the cities within the Miami conservancy district escaped unharmed except for lowland districts which are subject to flood conditions with each spring freshet.

Thousands of persons visited these dams last night and today. There was more water behind them than at any time since they were built.

Nestles in Valley

Dayton nestles in a valley. In the 1913 flood, the city was inundated, the water standing from four to 10 feet deep.

To prevent a recurrence, the dams were built at a cost of more than $35,000,000. They were constructed

INVADER ROUTED

Young Girl's Screams Awaken Grandmother in Columbus Home

COLUMBUS, Feb. 27—Attempting to gag Joan Lichten, 9, by thrusting a handkerchief down her throat, an intruder, believed to be a negro, was routed from a fashionable East Side home early today when the girl's feeble struggle awakened Mrs. Ethel Kohn, her grandmother, with whom she was sleeping.

The prowler dimmed the bathroom light by placing a shirt over the bulb and had ransacked other sections of the house, securing only 15 cents.

Authorities believe the same man was frightened away from three other East Side homes he had entered earlier in the morning.

Elite to Don Jewels for Parade of Punches Via Mr. Sharkey, Mr. Stribling

Bankers, Governors, Congressmen and Millionaires To Crowd into Colorful, Tropical Setting of Miami Beach for Tonight's Boxing Show

BY JAMES L. KILGALLEN
Marion Star Staff Writer

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 27—In the tropically colorful setting of Flamingo park, with its background of swaying palm trees, Jack Sharkey of Boston and W. L. (Young) Stribling of Macon, Ga., will battle tonight before the most distinguished, if not the wealthiest, audience that ever witnessed a prize fight. The bout is scheduled for 10 rounds to a referee's decision and Sharkey is expected to enter the ring an 8 to 5 favorite.

It will be an intriguing spectacle from many angles. It will be the first appearance of Jack Dempsey in the role of promoter and a successful one at that, for the boxoffice receipts are expected to run up over the $550,000 mark. Then, too, the bout has whipped up sectional interest to fever point with an army of southerners here to see their idol exchange blows with the slugging sailor from the north.

For sheer class in the way of a fight crowd tonight's event will surpass anything of its kind on record. A thousand or two millionaires, many of America's foremost celebrities and bejeweled society women will be among the 37,000 fans sitting in at the death, the cakewalk or whatever it may be. No one can figure either Sharkey or Stribling. Their bout may be a dud or a thriller but somehow it has caught the imagination of the public.

300 at Ringside

More than 300 newspapermen, the largest press representation at any fight, will be massed around the ringside six rows deep. A battery of telegraph wires has been cut into the arena. Radio broadcasting has been set up for a nationwide hookup. Sitting among the working press will be James J. Corbett, former heavyweight champion of the world.

The spectators will include Wall Street brokers, governors of half a dozen states, United States congressmen, great luminaries, wealthy bankers, retired millionaires, noted actors, celebrated singers, composers and the cream of society. A big delegation has arrived at fashionable Palm Beach. Their yachts are tossing lightly in beautiful Biscayne bay today.

Special trains rolled into Miami this morning with heavy quotas of fight fans. Hundreds came by boat from Havana and from Bimini Island. Thousands came by automobile, and they are still coming. The special trains came from New York, Washington, Atlanta, New Orleans, Augusta, Cincinnati, Chicago, Kansas City and other cities.

Arena Is Compact

Every spectator who passes into flag-bedecked Flamingo park will have a good view of the proceedings so compactly is the new octangular shaped arena built. Even the last

BANDIT IS CAPTURED AFTER GUN BATTLE

Man Who Has Terrorized Flushing, N. Y., Says He's Merchant's Son

FLUSHING, N. Y., Feb. 27—Guns blazed forth today as police and a lone bandit, who has terrorized this district for a month, battled in the streets while scores of residents watched from their windows.

When the holdup man finally was captured in a cellar after his ammunition gave out, he identified himself as Edward Scheukman, 25, said to be a son of a wealthy dry goods merchant in Pittsburgh.

He confessed, police say, that early today he held up William Lefkowitz, taxi driver, who was robbed of $9 and his cab. As the bandit drove away, Lefkowitz's calls for help brought a patrolman who jumped on the running board of a passing car and gave chase. The bandit jumped from the taxi, dashed behind a trolley pole and opened fire on the patrolman.

Four other patrolmen heard the shooting and came running up to join the battle. When his ammunition ran out, the bandit made a dash for a house and was caught in the basement.

500-MAN FORCE FOR STATE POLICE SEEN

Farm Bureau Head Expresses Opinion That Strength Will Be Increased

COLUMBUS, Feb. 27—That Ohio may have a rural state police force of not less than 500 officers within two years loomed as a possibility today.

Addressing the house highways committee today, L. B. Palmer, Columbus, president of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, voiced the opinion that, in the event the proposed state police force proves satisfactory, its strength will be increased from 200 to not less than 500 men in two years. Palmer spoke at a public hearing conducted by the committee relative to the Ackerman bill, which recently passed the senate, providing for a state department of public safety and for a state rural highway police system.

Postponing action on the measure, the committee arranged to give it further consideration at a meeting tonight.

Residents In North Section of Village Abandon Homes in Path of Scioto's Rise

C, D & M. STOPPED

Tracks Covered Near Newman's; Villages Isolated; Ice Menace Passes

The Columbus, Delaware & Marion Electric Co. interurban cars stopped running this morning when water covered the tracks between Newmans and Prospect.

Suspension of service was caused by another two foot rise in the Scioto river, bringing the water to the 11 foot mark.

The Maag Bros. Interurban bus were forced to make two detours on the Marion-Findlay route on account of high water. One was between Marion and Upper Sandusky and the other between Carey and Findlay.

The Scioto was reported to be rising at the rate of nearly two inches an hour at Prospect this morning. There was a rise of two feet and three inches during the night, according to the report.

Water Over Streets

The stream was above the 11 foot mark this morning. Water has covered streets in the north end of the village near North Main st. and is over the sidewalk on North Elm st.

Steady rise of the river in the north section of the village has already forced a number of families to abandon their homes, according to a report received this afternoon. Numerous basements of residences are filled with water and occupants of these homes are reported suffering from cold with furnaces out of commission.

Basements of the Methodist and Baptist churches are flooded.

DONOVAN WILL NOT ACCEPT WAR POST

Hoover Receives Shock When "Wild Bill" Decides To Retire

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 27—President-elect Hoover received somewhat of a shock today when Col. William J. Donovan informed him that he has decided not to accept the secretaryship of war, which was offered him Monday, and which Mr. Hoover had considered as good as settled.

Colonel Donovan paid a visit to the Hoover home in S st. shortly before noon and acquainted the president-elect with his decision. Donovan plans to return to New Mexico immediately to wind up his work as presidential representative at the seven-states Colorado river conference, and will retire to private life as soon after March 4 as possible, it was said.

Donovan is understood to have informed Mr. Hoover that there was but one cabinet post he would consider—the attorney generalship—and that being unavailable he preferred to retire to pursue his own legal career.

Smiles At Memories

Smiling at the memories her conversation unfolded Mrs Starbuck told how the hungry governor of the state of California noticed and pounced upon one of several barrels filled with sandwiches.

Governor Markham had started on his second sandwich the Whittier matron said when Lou Henry interrupted I remember she said

Pardon me Mr Markham but we thought we would save those for our chickens We have something better for you to eat

Governor Markham laughed and told Lou he certainly had not come to Whittier to take food out of the bills of its chickens Then the long delayed luncheon was served and at its conclusion the governor publicly thanked the citizens of Whittier for the reception accorded him and made special mention of the little lady who had sung so charmingly and had refreshed him with food equally charming

Lou Henry blushed at the compliment I often wonder if she ever afterward thought of the incident especially when she was touring the country speaking in behalf of the starving Belgians

At any rate I think perhaps Mrs Herbert Hoover's sixth sense as a hostess began to develop that day when the Whittier State school cornerstone was laid

Incidentally Lou Henry was chosen to sing that solo as an earned reward because that term she had led the class in civil government in the old Bailey street school

(Another interesting article about the early life of Mrs Hoover will follow tomorrow)

Remember the FACTS about used car allowances

MOST new car sales now involve the trading-in of a buyer's used car. More and more people are asking, 'Why should my used car seem to have several values? . . . . Why should dealers in different makes of cars offer me allowances differing materially? . . . . Does the largest allowance offered mean the best deal for me?'

Here are basic facts:

1 Your used car has seemingly different values because competitive dealers are bidding to sell you a new car

2 Your used car has only one fundamental basis of value: what the dealer who accepts it in trade can get for it in the used car market

3 The largest trade-in allowance which is offered on your used car is not necessarily the best deal for you Sometimes it is sometimes it is not

4 An excessive allowance may mean that you are paying an excessive price for the new car in comparison with its real value

5 Judge the merits of each new car in comparison with its price, including all delivery and finance charges Then weigh any difference in the allowances offered on your used car

WHEN you trade-in your present car, remember that you are first of all making a purchase and not a sale. You are buying a new car and simply applying your present car as a credit toward the purchase price of the new car

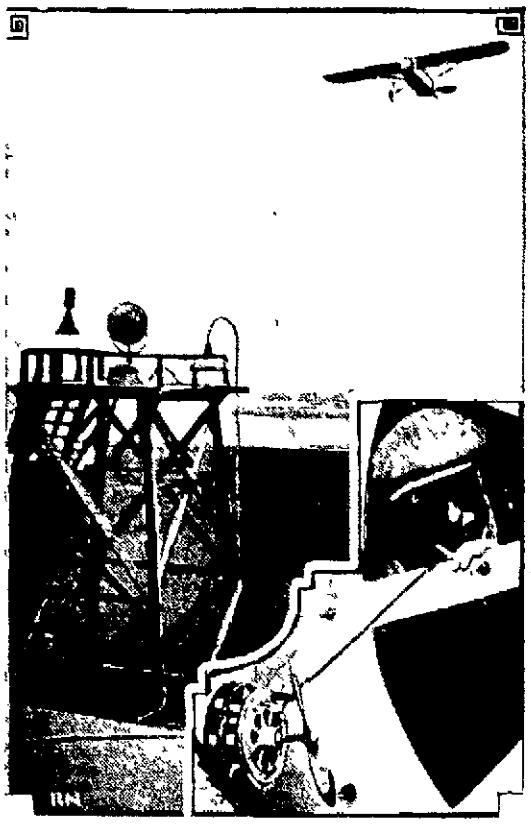
Televox Answers Plane's Call for Field Lights



The plane approaching Newark, N. J., airport blows the siren, lower right, which is carried on the side of the fuselage to command Televox, the electric watchman rigged on the platform in the foreground, to light the landing lights when flying at night.

Electric Watchman Floods Airport with Light at Siren Call

A WATCHMAN who neither sleeps, eats nor takes a day off switched on the 21,000,000 candle power flood lights on the Newark Metropolitan airport. High above the field a plane approached in the darkness. Only Newark street lights were visible, but somewhere in that blackness below the pilot knew there was a landing field.

He reached out of the cockpit and pulled a cord. A siren on his plane screamed louder and louder, its pitch constantly rising.

Suddenly the lights on the field outlined it clearly, showing plainly its runways and hangars.

On the ground no one had turned the light switch. An instrument which resembled a loud speaker on the roof of a hangar picked up the sounds of the siren and the impulse set up was amplified through relays until it was sufficient to operate the switch.

The lights were switched off and the plane disappeared again in the darkness. This time the pilot sounded his siren at the height of [illegible]000 feet and again the field lights blazed forth in the darkness.

The device is called a televox. When the pitch of the siren reaches a certain height, the length of that particular wave stimulates the sensitive instrument on the ground. Its use will make night landing possible on fields not in charge of attendants and will make human vigilants on fields at night unnecessary.

On landing, after testing the instrument from several points of the compass and varying elevations, the pilot taxied his plane to the far corners of the field and there sounded the siren. Each time the lights flashed on.

School Newspapers

ALTHOUGH journalism is selected as a life work by a comparatively small percentage of Marion school students, it is used as a preliminary training for many others who will enter other fields of endeavor. Ability to write clearly and in simple language for the expression of thought is desirable no matter what branch of work is taken up, and this fact appears to be recognized by local school heads.

Journalism as an auxiliary in class work has even found a place in the grade schools, probably the first publication in this branch being The Pioneer, which is being issued by pupils of the sixth grade at Pearl Street building.

The initial issue of The Pioneer, a one-page paper printed on a mimeograph, appeared this week with Frederic Gelbaugh and Wilbur Shannon as editors and Richard Crow as manager. It is neatly printed in three columns and would be a credit to a school made up of pupils much older than those of the sixth grade.

The Pioneer publishes both news and editorial subjects in the first issue, including school banking, attendance, school radios, the city's plans for landing operations, community club activities and vacation plans.

Nearly all of the material was prepared by the students under direction of Miss Epler, English teacher.

In the editorial on Banking appears this comment: "There is an old saying that an apple a day will keep the doctor away. So a penny or a nickel a day will keep poverty away."

Other grade schools, it is reported, plan issuing similar papers.

Merely Ornamental

ARTICLES of value are not often picked up on the street. A Marion man ascertained this fact when his foot struck a metal contraption as he was walking in the uptown district several days ago and he discovered that it was what appeared to be a perfectly good cigar lighter, if any cigar lighters can be placed in that class.

It happened that an untouched cigar was clamped between his teeth and he had immediate opportunity to try out his find. Try he did numerous times, but the lighter failed to work.

It was one that some discouraged owner had thrown away and again it met the same fate.

Lodge Activities

SOME student of modern social and economic conditions recently came forth with a discussion in which he declared that secret fraternity activities have suffered a relapse as the result of the development of numerous counter attractions in recent years.

Lodge attendance is decreasing and enrollment is not holding up, this commentator declared.

That may be true, but if so, Marion is apparently an exception. Marion has always been classed as a "lodge town," indicating that the community is one of pronounced social and gregarious leanings. There is no outward evidence of any change in the situation.

At this time at least two lodges are engaged in home talent theatrical pro[illegible] and practically all similar organizations are adding new members [illegible] carrying out ambitious social programs.

It is generally conceded that decline of fraternal organizations in Marion or any other American community would mean serious losses to the general welfare. Not only do these fraternities promote friendliness and mutual helpfulness among the members, but they are invaluable aids to human progress and happiness in general.

* * *

Fraternal Leaders

EVIDENCE of Marion's prominence and activity in lodge affairs is seen in the fact that when the Ohio brigade of the Uniform Rank, Knights of Pythias convenes for a state [illegible] in Columbus March [illegible] the [illegible] leading [illegible] will be present [illegible].

James H. Ramey, head of the repair department of the Huber Manufacturing Co., holds the rank of brigadier general and is commanding officer of the Ohio brigade.

Judge Charles L. Justice of the third district court of appeals and a Marion man, will be present at the meeting as chancellor commander-elect of the Ohio grand lodge, Knights of Pythias. Judge Justice will deliver one of the principal addresses of the brigade meeting.

Last year John A. Abel of this city served as president of the state organization of the fraternal Order of Eagles and he continues active in affairs of the state group. Ralph G. Williamson holds office in the Ohio grand encampment of Odd Fellows as grand junior warden and is scheduled for advancement to the highest post in the organization in the course of a few years.

Other Marion men and women hold district offices in various fraternal organizations, all making up an official representation of the city which provides ample proof that lodge affairs here are far from on the downgrade.

"Movie Lincoln," Visitor in Marion, Goes Into History for Accuracy of Portrayal

Play Presented at Junior High School by Judge Bull, "Double" of Martyred President, Is Based on Thorough Study of Life and Customs of Civil War Times

"Abraham Lincoln" visited Central Junior High school yesterday, perhaps for the first time in history, although it is not known authentically whether Lincoln passed through this city from Springfield, Ill., on his speaking campaigns and trip to the White House.

Mrs. Mary Todd Lincoln, in the person of Miss Louise Dorgan, of Chicago, was also a guest of Principal W. E. [illegible], his teaching staff and pupils.

Judge Charles Edward Bull, of Hollywood, Cal., known in motion picture circles, lyceum courses and towns where he visits the schools, as the "Abraham Lincoln of the twentieth century", bears a striking resemblance to the martyred president.

So striking is this resemblance that Bull has played in several movie pictures, including "The Iron Horse" and "The Heart of Maryland," and may, in the near future, do another characterization for a prominent film company, he said while here yesterday.

Nearly six feet, four inches tall, and weighing [illegible] pounds, Bull reaches the standards of Lincoln, who was practically the same height and weighed [illegible] pounds.

Makes Thorough Research

In his Hollywood home, Judge Bull has a full library on Lincoln. So earnest is he in his efforts to have his characterizations true to the life and time of Lincoln, that in writing the play he presented at Central Junior High school yesterday afternoon, "The Heart of Abraham Lincoln," Judge Bull read 4[illegible] books to find out whether or not the evening meal in Lincoln's day was referred to as "dinner or supper." He discovered that the president's in 1863 ate "supper" at 6 o'clock.

The play was written by Bull—who some day expects to write a drama portraying Lincoln's life from the time he lived in Springfield until his assassination—and gives a typical scene in the White House on Nov. 20, 1863, the day after the delivery of the famous Gettysburg address.

When the play opens Mrs. Lincoln is reading two telegrams, one from a woman's organization asking that execution of a group of men be stayed, and one from a Kentucky mother asking that stay of execution be granted her son. When Lincoln comes home he writes telegrams to the people in charge of the two cases, commanding that respite be given.

Wife Critical

A side of Mary Todd Lincoln's personality not generally known, that sarcastic, easily angered, hen-pecking type, is brought out in the playlet. First she derides Lincoln because his tie isn't straight, then it's his coattails that aren't pressed, his stubbornness about wanting his old boots back when congress gaiters are so much more stylish, and in the last part of the play, she upbraids him for his failure to draw applause with the Gettysburg address delivered the day before.

Lincoln's only reply to this last "fault" is that the speech was from the bottom of his heart, and that its basis was as firm as the mountains.

The president's homely action of changing his gaiters for his boots, in the living room of the White House, his wearing the old gray shawl when outdoors, all the mannerisms which American people hold dear in their thoughts of Lincoln, were brought out in the play, together with snatches of his wit, sarcasm and deep feeling.

A full-face view of Judge Bull presented a remarkable likeness to the president, but when the right side was shown in profile, the resemblance was still more amazing.

Bull has a carefully groomed set of whiskers, shaved and trimmed exactly as the Civil War president wore his, and a shock of dark brown hair that has the appearance of being run through constantly by a man whose nervous hands must be occupied.

No Display on Streets

Judge Bull is not at all backward about acknowledging his likeness to Lincoln, but he does believe that the several other men in the United States who resemble the president, desecrate a great life when they appear on the streets in store pipe hat, shawl and long-tailed coat worn by the president. Bull wears modern clothes.

This man of today who so closely resembles the savior of Civil War days, presents other points of similarity. The president's ancestors came from Virginia and Bull's from North Carolina, just over the mountains. Bull's birthday was on Feb. 14 and Lincoln's on Feb. 12. Bull has a beginning in life coinciding with that of the president. Both were born in log cabins, Lincoln in Kentucky and Bull in Texas.

Bull has it over on the president in one respect, though, for he swears that he has split more rails than Lincoln ever saw.

Judge Bull was formerly a jurist in the Reno, Nev. courts, going from there to the movies and on to lyceum work and now to his own managing.

He says that he "has known since he was 13 years old that he was the homeliest human on earth and that he resembled Abraham Lincoln." When fever kept him bedfast, his growth of beard made the resemblance even more pronounced and from that time he has given the beard careful attention.

The students and faculty at Central Junior High school were tremendously interested in this man, and after his short talk at the close of the play, one girl asked that he and Miss Dorgan pose for snapshots.

Judge Bull will be in Marion until Friday, stopping at Hotel Marion.

MURDER CHARGE FACED BY CAR MOTORMAN

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Feb. 27—B. C. Mellon, street car motorman here, today faced a probable charge of murder in the first degree following the fatal shooting of Mobile Saunders, 35, negro shop attendant.

Mellon, who was arrested in Catlettsburg, Ky., was unable, police say, to give a motive for the shooting. Friends of the man said he had been suffering a nervous disorder for several weeks.

The negro was shot as he left the store on an errand.

FIVE YEARS OF SUFFERING END: KONJOLA LAUDED

"I Have Found New and Splendid Health All Over," Declares Lady Who Found a Surprise in New Medicine

MRS KATHERINE NEMENS

Stomach trouble and nervousness just about made a wreck of me in five years, and to be well again gives me more joy than I can describe and that is why I praise Konjola," said Mrs. Katherine Nemens, 283 Hollywood Boulevard, Youngstown, Ohio.

"Even the lightest foods caused gas, bloating, and general misery. I could not sleep at night. I was so nervous. The smallest noises irritated me, and my general health was running low. After meals the gas pressure was so severe that I felt my heart would stop beating any minute.

"After reading, day after day, about Konjola, I regained new hope and faith and decided to give it a trial. Two bottles did me so much good that I realized I was, at last, on the road to health. I took four more bottles and today my nerves are strong as steel, every sign of indigestion has disappeared, and I can eat and sleep like a normal, healthy person. Many of my friends are taking this medicine and it is doing all and more than is claimed for it."

Konjola is different than any other known remedy in this section. It contains 32 juices extracted from natural plants which invigorate the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels to a more healthy action. The effect of this Konjola on the entire system brings amazing relief in cases of suffering that has been going on for years. At the same time, many weak and rundown systems have been restored to a new state of health through his compound. Such a vast number of men and women in this city have told of their experience with this new medical compound, until now, Konjola is the most highly indorsed medicine that is known in this section.

Konjola is sold in Marion at Stump & Sons Pharmacy and by all the best druggists throughout this section.—

All Streams Out

Circleville, which was cut off from Columbus yesterday by the rising waters of the Scioto river which tore across the lowlands, swept a temporary bridge from its foundations on the Scioto Trail and inundated the roads in several other places, had not been able to provide an accurate estimate of its losses at this hour today.

Cellars were flooded in many Ohio communities and accurate ... damage suffered could not be checked or estimated.

In many of state residents were reminded of the epochal 1913 flood when several hundred persons in Ohio lost their lives as nearly every stream and river in the state burst from its banks and flooded cities and towns.

Alarm was expressed in many sections over the weather forecast. Cold weather was being prayed for so as to check the rising of the streams and prevent a heavy rainfall.

WHEN BACK HURTS FLUSH OUT KIDNEYS

Drink Lots of Good Water All Day, Also Take Salts Occasionally

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water — you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; can not injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.—Adv.

Odds on Sharkey

Betting odds veered sharply in Sharkey's favor today because of the preponderance of Sharkey money. More than $100,000 Sharkey money was being uncovered in chunks ranging from $5,000 to $5,000 and the odds shifted from even money to ... on Sharkey. Stribling money was strangely quiet in pre-battle wagering in spite of the large number of southern fans who are pulling hard for the ... young Macon boy to ... Odds of 8 to 5 and 2 to 1 on Sharkey may prevail at ring time.

The consensus of sports writers in that Sharkey will beat Stribling, eight out of every 10 writers making this prediction. One of the factors that influences their judgment is the lack of weight carried by Stribling. Many believe he will not tip the beam as high as 180. He looks much lighter than Sharkey and besides he injured his right hand slightly and twisted a rib while punching the heavy bag a week ago.

Stribling, however, said he is in fine physical condition and he predicted that he will win by a K. O. he said.

Says Mr. Stribling

I will knock Sharkey out the same way I have KO'D 117 other. I know that my punch has improved, my stamina has increased and my mental condition is the very best. I think I can box with Sharkey and I know I can hit harder than he can. This will be my fight.

Sharkey smiled significantly when asked what he thought of his chance. He made this statement:

I am after the world's heavyweight championship and I'm not going to let Stribling stand in my way. I will beat him. You can bank on that. Of course I will try for a knockout and I believe I can land it. I am going right after him from the opening bell and he will soon know he is in a fight. There was an air of confidence in the Sharkey camp.

The Bostonian intimated that if the Georgian starts throwing low punches he will retaliate in the same manner. He said he will be every bit as rough as Stribling, who has a reputation for rough tactics inside the ropes.

Louis Strict Referee

However, Lou Magnolia of New York the referee, is a strict disciplinarian and it is a certainty that he will see to it that the rules are followed to the letter. Magnolia will be the sole judge of the fight. Even though the bout is to be fought under the rules of the New York State Boxing commission there are to be no official judges. Magnolia will not tolerate repeated clinching or wrestling. He has a reputation for making them fight.

The preliminaries will start promptly at ... o'clock tonight with a battle royal in which 12 negroes will participate. The main bout is scheduled to start promptly at 10 o'clock.

at Englewood, Germantown, Taylorsville, Huffman, and Lockington. Each at a vantage point.

Those make up the Miami conservancy district which was created by enactment of state legislation. The district is a court in itself. It told railroads to move and they moved. One entire town, Osborn, was moved a mile and a half away because in the old location it would have been subject to flood conditions. Roads were moved and farms within the districts were bought outright or condemned. Houses were sold, torn down or shifted to other locations. All property benefited by the dams was assessed to pay for the structures. The common pleas judges of the nine counties which the district touches form the conservancy court.

Allow Even Distributions

Engineers estimate that three times as much water could come into the valley as in 1913 and still Dayton would not be menaced by floods.

After its completion it was chronicled as the greatest structural engineering feat east of the Mississippi river.

Each dam is about 100 feet in height and 800 feet wide at the bottom. On top of the dams are concrete highways on which four autos may drive abreast.

Giant spillways allow even distribution of water.

Dayton lives in peaceful serenity behind these bulwarks of concrete unafraid of the flood menace that is causing much alarm in various parts of the Buckeye state today.

BANQUET GIVEN BY DISPLAYMEN'S CLUB

Dr F A Stengel Reviews History of Organization in Talk

About 50 members and their guests attended the annual banquet of the Marion Displaymen's club held last night in the Hotel Harding ballroom beginning 6 o'clock.

Short talks were given by several of the members. These included Otis Harriman, vice president of the club, and Sam Rosenberg. Carl Campbell president of the club acted as toastmaster.

Dr. F. A. Stengel who organized the club during the Marion Centennial in 1922 gave a talk telling of progress of the club since its founding and the various activities it has taken up in that time. The club was founded as a result of the program of window advertising and display work that was undertaken during the period of the centennial seven years ago. The different merchants of the city decided to get together and work as a unit in their window display program and the Displaymen's club was the result of this action.

Music at the hotel during the dinner hour was furnished by the Harmony quartet, a local group of colored musicians.

Following the dinner and program at the Harding the party moved to the offices of the Marion Retail Merchants bureau where a smoker and cards were enjoyed by the members. A. B. Wooley local amateur magician entertained the guests at the Retail Bureau offices with a short program of tricks.

MAN NEAR DEATH

Gasoline Station Owner Shot By Mysterious Assailant

CLEVELAND, Feb 27—Sam Copperman 31, gasoline station proprietor, was near death in Charity hospital today with five bullet wounds in his body inflicted by a mysterious assailant last night. The victim was unconscious and the motive for the attack remains a mystery.

An attendant told detectives that Copperman had been talking for more than an hour with a stranger and that when the two walked outside together the other man suddenly opened fire. The day's receipts of the station were in Copperman's pockets and since the money was not disturbed police are convinced that robbery was not the motive for the shooting. Physicians at Charity hospital said this morning that Copperman probably would not live throughout the day.

Ice Menace Passes

Danger of Marion county bridges being swept from their foundations by ice jams was practically averted today.

According to Cecil K. Leaventon county surveyor, ice jams on the Little Scioto river which were a serious menace yesterday have practically disappeared today.

Streams in the western part of the county have continued to rise however and are now threatening to inundate much of the territory along the big Scioto river.

Villages Isolated

LaRue, Agosta, Green Camp and Prospect were isolated today as water from the big Scioto continued to spread over the country along the stream.

The Whetstone river, which yesterday went over the Harding Highway between Caledonia and Iberia, was back within its bounds today according to reports from the eastern part of the county.

Passage of the ice and the lack of rain after the deluge Monday night are expected by county officials to bring relief late today. Sudden melting of a heavy blanket of snow which had covered the ground for several weeks and a rainfall of 1.75 inches Monday night resulted in the high water and ice jam threat. The fact that the ground was frozen, forcing all water to run off to way of the streams, was responsible for the seriousness of the situation, officials in the county surveyor's office declare.

Local Auto Club Lists Road Situation

State highways and county roads running through Marion county are rapidly becoming impassable, according to the report issued at noon today by Mrs. D. A. Gallagher secretary of the Marion Auto club.

Roads in the worst shape are the Prospect pk. which is closed to all traffic and the roads west of the city. At the present time about the only way to get to Prospect is to go to Waldo and cross over. This is the only route over which Richwood can be reached also. The Marion-Galion rd. which was flooded yesterday from Iberia to Marion, had been put into fairly good shape at noon today and traffic had been resumed. The Delaware-Marion rd. is still passable, although several residents of Delaware moved from their houses during this morning. Water has crossed the road in several places close to Delaware. A detour is provided for the Green Camp-Marion rd., which is under water. All roads north are in fairly good shape.

According to reports received by Mrs. Gallagher from the office of the State Automobile Association at noon today the southern part of the state is hard hit by the flood and practically all roads near the Tuscarawas, Mahoning and Ohio rivers have been closed. The district of the state near Millersport, New Philadelphia, Newark, and Mt. Vernon is in about the worst shape of any with the exception of the roads near Springfield and Dayton.

Route No. 162 from Fitchville to New London has been closed. No. 16 from Granville to Newark is in bad shape and is not expected to be passable by nightfall. Practically all roads south of Newark are impassable. A temporary bridge has been erected at Wooster on Route 30 but all cars pass over it at their own risk. State officials there fear a caving of a bank of the river at any time and a warning to this effect has been placed at this point. Route 23 near ... Creek is barely passable. U. S. Route 23 south was closed at noon today. Route 23 north from Circleville to Chillicothe ... closed but detours are provided for most of them. All roads from Lancaster and Athens are under water but have not been closed yet. The three C highway into Washington C. H. from Mt. Sterling is in bad shape. Roads from Springfield to Dayton are endangered as water is rising very fast, and No. 202 from Troy to Dayton was closed shortly before noon. Roads from Chillicothe to Jackson and Waverly were both closed. All roads in Iowa county were closed.

New Philadelphia was completely isolated at noon with little prospect of relief in sight. Every road into and out of this city was closed early today. State officials said that there was a small possibility of getting into the territory near New Philadelphia by going through Wooster, Dover and Walnut but would not advise attempting it.

South of Columbus bus traffic from Zanesville to the capital was demoralized with both cities without bus service all day yesterday. Buckeye Lake was overflowing as was the river at Hepburn.

HEARING HELD IN REAL ESTATE SUIT

Columbus Attorney Appears To Represent Plaintiff in Local Court

For the first time in many years according to local attorneys and court officials a negro attorney appeared before the Marion county common pleas court yesterday.

B. F. Hughes, prominent colored attorney of Columbus, acted as counsel for the plaintiff in the case of Hubert Baughman against W. L. Jones, local realtor. The suit involved a contract for the purchase of real estate.

The case was continued until Saturday by Judge Seiheld yesterday afternoon. Jones was represented by the law firm of Dunathen & Dunathen.

Dismisses Suit

The case of Milo Poorman against H. Stanley Herr was thrown out of the common pleas court yesterday when Judge Seiheld ruled that he had no jurisdiction to hear it. Poorman brought suit against Herr for collection of $77 damages and a like sum claimed to be due on garage bills.

Poorman was represented by Attorney W. N. Harder. Attorney J. H. Williamson represented Herr.

Marriage licenses have been issued in probate court to the following: Bernard M. McPharlin, 21, salesman, and Nellie Pittman, 21, both of Marion.

William Finlay Griffith, 18, timekeeper, and Wilma A. Donley, 17, both of Marion.

PLENTY OF LIQUOR, SAY BOOTLEGGERS

Run into Capital with Booze and Out Ahead of Enforcement Officers

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27—Bootleggers were on the run in Washington today.

They were running in several directions chiefly in and out of the District of Columbia bringing in rye, gin and alcohol and going out after additional supplies that the unofficial and under-cover celebration of the advent of Herbert Hoover's administration may not be wanting in gayety.

Some of the bootleggers were running from the police and federal enforcement officers who have been unusually active in the last week in an effort to dry up the capital for the inauguration.

The bootleggers insisted that there would be an adequate stock on hand for the festivities in spite of a demand that promises to tax the ... of the distribution system. For regular customers there will be no advance in prices on the part of the respectable and reliable vendors of booze.

For the visitors prices will go high. An out-of-towner probably will be asked $10 to $12 for a quart of very young Maryland rye, $5 to $8 for gin and $10 to $18 for genuine smuggled Scotch. That's about twice the normal prices to regular customers.

ORGANIZE UNION

Children's Work To Be Promoted by Forest Lawn Society

A Children's Workers Union, to meet the fourth Tuesday in each month was organized last night at a meeting of the teachers of the beginners primary and junior departments of the Forest Lawn Sunday school. Miss Elma Church, at whose home the meeting last night was held, was elected president of the organization and Miss Gertrude Snyder was named secretary.

A program featuring the different teachers present at the meeting last night was presented by Miss Church.

A vocal solo, "My Father Knows," given by Mrs. L. Thompson, opened the program. This was followed by a piano solo by Miss Hazel McDowell. Miss Grace Pennoch gave a short talk on the moralization of a story. Mrs. C. C. Appleman told of the work in the beginners department, after which the hostess gave two short talks, the first on the effect of a good story on the mind of an irritated child, and the second on the impression that a good picture makes on the average young man.

Following Miss Church's talks a general discussion of work in the citywide Bible school conducted recently was held by the members.

An historical contest completed the program, after which refreshments were served by the hostess.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. L. Thompson, Benton pl.

BROWN DISCUSSES BOY SCOUT WORK

Executive's Talk at K of C. Meeting Illustrated with Motion Pictures

Principles of the Boy Scout movement and the story of the organization's work in building the character of boys were told to members of Marion council No. 671 Knights of Columbus last night by Walter C. Brown, executive of Harding area Boy Scouts of America.

In addition to his explanation of the laws and their effect on growing boys, Brown also showed a three-reel motion picture of activities of Camp Owens summer headquarters of the Harding Area.

The appearance of Brown before the local council last night followed the recent installation of a troop of Boy Scouts at St. Mary's school. The troop was sponsored by the local K. of C. lodge. The Rev. Father Herbert McDevitt is scoutmaster of the troop.

Plans also were made last night for a banquet on March 17, St. Patrick's night, and for other future entertainments.

THOMPSON'S FORCES VICTORS IN CHICAGO

City's Aldermanic Election Goes Off Quietly as Reform Faction Loses

CHICAGO, Feb. 27—Mayor William Hale Thompson's forces today remained in control of the city council following yesterday's aldermanic election. The so-called "reform" faction won only a few seats. Leaders of the latter group blamed inclement weather for their poor showing.

Thompson's hardest blow was the loss of one of his floor leaders, although 33 aldermen who have supported his administration during the last two years were reelected for another two years.

The election, to the surprise of many, went off quietly. To the police, however, the day of calm was no surprise. They were unusually well prepared for trouble, and, in the words of Deputy Commissioner John Stege, "gangland knew it."

Nevertheless, Stege admitted, department chiefs breathed a sigh of relief when the day was done and "no fireworks had started."

Daily Proverb—"He who serves many masters must neglect some."

Jack Dempsey will probably be willing to admit that he is more given to brawn than grey matter, hence there is all the greater need that his press agent should possess brains. They're needed when an attempt is to be made to put over a fake on the public.

France denies having entered into a secret military pact with Belgium. If we get the position of France, it was an open pact which was registered with the League of Nations two years ago. Naturally, the League of Nations buried it.

Referring to the engagement of Miss Anne Morrow and Colonel Lindbergh, John Coolidge's fiancee, Miss Trumbull, remarked: "I've been bothered a lot, but at least they've never published any of my poetry * * * 'cause I never wrote any." Miss Trumbull may consider herself decidedly fortunate.

A Paris jury has awarded a woman over there a verdict of $8,000 against a doctor who so operated on her legs to reduce their size as to cause her to lose one of them. Aren't the French quaint? Who but they would think of making doctors pay for their mistakes?

Mrs. Katherine Burke Peabody, yet young and pretty, widow of the late multi-millionaire collar manufacturer she married in 1920, is soon to marry Reginald McLean, an Arizona mining engineer nursed by her when he was a lieutenant in the American army over in France, where she became known as the "Angel of France." What we might call a deferred romance of the war.

Police Commissioner Whalen is back in New York and again busily interested in the city's traffic problem. Up to a late hour this afternoon there had been no new developments in the Rothstein murder, for the solving of which he was made commissioner.

A Chicago wire tells us that "in 1927 the appropriation for police work in New York was more than $437,000,000." As the total expenditures of the New York police department that year were $15,015,725, we just about have to conclude that the Chicago version of New York's expenditures for the suppression of crime, like the story of Mark Twain's death, is "greatly exaggerated."

Possibly the papers using the Trotzky articles may feel that they know their business, but a lot of people will be bound to wonder what impels the papers so doing to circulate propaganda looking to the overthrow of all government and the turning over of the world to a reign of robbery, tyranny and murder.

London expresses the view that the "adhesion" of the United States to the World court is a needed complement of the Kellogg peace pact. Maybe so. Mr. Coolidge also seems to think that way and so does Mr. Kellogg, but it's hardly likely that this country will enter the World court save with the reservations set out by the senate, or others to serve the same end, for which, no doubt, time will show us that we should be grateful.

Another Veteran Actor Gone.

It was but a few a few weeks since that, in commenting on the death of Tim Murphy, we enumerated a long list of stage favorites of high ability who had passed from life's stage in recent years, the deaths of many of them being distant only a matter of months. And now another name is added to the list with the death of Frank Keenan, of [illegible], at his home in Hollywood, Sunday.

Keenan, who had attained man's allotted three score years and ten, was born in Dubuque, Iowa, and began his stage career when twenty-two years old in Lawrence, Massachusetts. After playing in Boston, he went to New York, where he appeared in "The Capitol" and later in "A Poor Relation," made famous by Sol Smith Russell. It was there that he developed into an actor of high rank, his performance of "Rip Van Winkle" bringing him recognition as one of the most capable actors in the line. If our memory serves us correctly, he also made a decided hit in James A. Herne's "Hearts of Oak." Following his attainment of success in the metropolis, he enlisted a great following throughout the country by his road tours. In more recent years he is said to have achieved a financial success in screen work as great as was his artistic success behind the footlights.

Those who have had the pleasure of witnessing his performances here, on both the stage and the screen, need not be told of his merit as an actor, and those who knew him personally, as did many of the local lodge of Elks, need not be told of Frank Keenan's worth as a man.

The Law Should Be Obeyed.

It is not always that we find ourself in absolute agreement with the utterances of the Methodist Board of Temperance and Public Morals. Very frequently we find ourself out of harmony with its course of action and in its selection of associate organizations in matters as far removed from either temperance or morals as pole is from pole. And we can not say that we are wholly in sympathy with some of the utterances made by it in its retort to the farewell address of Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, to the senate. But we not hesitate to say that in its answer to the senator's appeal in opposition to the Jones-Stalker bill it [illegible] with force when it says:

"Wet drinking by dry voters is inconsistent—and worse.

"We will go farther, the drinking of alcoholic liquors by a sworn legislator is a breach of his oath. He has solemnly affirmed before God and man that he will uphold the constitution of the United States. A violation of that oath by the consumption of liquors produced and vended contrary to law is dishonorable.

"It makes no difference whether the offender is a dry or a wet, both are equally under obligations to stand by the country, the constitution and the flag, both have pledged themselves on their honor to do so. If they fail, they fail in a pledged agreement with God and America."

Law violation is reprehensible in all. It is especially vicious when committed to those to whom is entrusted the making of the law. Nothing causes the law to fall into greater reproach and become a thing of scorn to those who would flout it, than to see it willfully and persistently violated and defied by those who make our laws. Some of the violations of the prohibition law may be forgivable in some; no violation of the prohibition law should be forgiven those responsible for its enactment or its enforcement. What might be only an offense in the case of some, becomes a crime in the cases of others, if for no other reason than the bad example it sets for the betrayal of the law. So long as the prohibition law obtains as a law, it should be obeyed by every official of the government, no matter what his personal liking or dislike for it may be.

Reenlistments in the army show a twenty-one per cent. gain during the last five years. It's just possible that army conditions may not be so awful as they have been painted by some of the critics of the army.

Four churchmen who have, in turn, been elected during the past year bishop coadjutor or the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Pennsylvania, have turned the job down despite the fact that the annual salary is $10,000 and that an additional yearly allowance of $2,500 for maintenance goes with it. Talking about mystery stories, here's one to make you sit up and take notice.

The official rottenness recently disclosed in the Cleveland city government does not necessarily prove that the city manager plan of government is especially subject to corruption, but it does make evident that the plan is not any more of a safeguard against corruption than any other governmental plan.

Chicagoans are said to be decidedly cool to the proposal that the Windy City adopt eastern standard time that the two cities might transact business on an identical schedule. Characteristically, the Chicago position is: Why doesn't New York adopt central standard time? There's never any telling. One of these days all of us may find ourselves back under the old sun time.

The American Civil Liberties union is condemning the use of night sticks by the New York police. The Civil Liberties union may always be counted on to be consistent in its opposition to any and all things designed to suppress violence and preserve law and order.

Mrs. Esther Evans DeForest Wilson, society woman and big game huntress, has been given an indeterminate sentence of imprisonment on Welfare Island, New York, which is not to exceed three years, for becoming temperamental and shooting and wounding her husband. The only safe way for a good-looking woman to proceed and escape punishment is to shoot 'em in the back "in self-defense."

A Washington correspondent says that one of Mr. Hoover's first acts after taking over the presidency will be to call on official and social Washington to set a good example to the nation by complying with the terms of the prohibition law. That's as it should be, but we very gravely fear that Mr. Hoover will discover that there is an awful lot of deafness in the national capital.

If James M. McCann, the New York business man accused of being head of a great liquor ring, can make good his claim that the $400,000 worth of liquor seized by federal operatives is pre-war stuff purchased by him before the war, he's liable to acquire practically an unlimited number of war personal friends.

A Michigan hunter claims that, while going down a hillside, he ran into a big timber wolf, and to save his life had to choke it to death. The sad phase of the thing is that there wasn't a movie camera within a hundred miles of the scene to fortify the story with a few evidences of Michigan's brand of truth and veracity.

After three or four weeks given the celebrated Hahn-Duveen art suit for $500,000 damages, it develops that the Kansas City Art institute never offered the plaintiff $250,000 for her alleged Da Vinci masterpiece, and hadn't the money to pay for it if it had made the offer. Anyway, the public has learned a lot about art, real and imaginary, which is a compensation for the time given to following up the case.

Nose and Throat Passages.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

In my mail are many letters asking about difficult breathing. Old people, young people, babies—it makes no difference what the age may be, or the sex, there are many persons who suffer from this symptom.

Perhaps this is a good time to discuss the subject. By doing so in a formal way, all the letters of inquiry are answered at once.

There is a multitude of causes for difficult breathing. In the first place, it often travels along with some alteration of the normal condition of the blood. For instance, following an infection there may be the development of poisons which affect the breathing.

Wrong diet with intestinal fermentation may result in an acid condition of the system. This is what is sometimes called "acidosis." It may have difficult breathing as one of its signs.

There are various nervous and mechanical states which have their effects upon the ease of breathing. Among such we find obstructions in the nose, throat or bronchial tubes. A polypus in the nose, or a swelling of the mucous lining of the breathing apparatus may interfere with its proper action.

Sometimes the breathing muscles of the chest may be disturbed and incapable of normal breathing. This is what happens in pleurisy when the chest is filled with fluid. This prevents free action of the diaphragm and regular breathing.

Besides these causes of uncomfortable and difficult breathing, we find other cases which can be traced to interferences with free circulation of the blood through the lungs. There may be some disturbance in the action of the heart. The blood is not sent through the lungs in proper fashion. In consequence the blood is impaired in its content and the victim struggles for more oxygen.

This is a brief recital of three causes which may produce labored breathing. Let me describe in a little more detail, some of these effects.

Perhaps one of the most common causes for the symptom is gas formation in the stomach and intestines. A mild attack of indigestion may result in tremendous gas formation. The diaphragm is pressed upon and the patient thinks the "heart is under pressure."

If there is a chronic heart trouble, the disturbance with gas may aggravate it. Both factors work together to make the breathing very difficult.

In acidosis, as I have said, there may be some trouble. Usually the breathing is very deep. It may not be terribly labored, but it seems to go to the very toes.

In pneumonia the lungs are clogged. It is not surprising that in this disease the breathing is interfered with and consequently may be very rapid.

Adenoids and enlarged tonsils in children are common causes for the symptom. There is no hope of complete relief until these are properly treated. It stands to reason that blocking of the nasal and throat passages will interfere with breathing.

This is a brief and somewhat incomplete statement regarding the causes of abnormal breathing. If it helps you to understand the symptoms, I shall be very glad. Your doctor will complete the picture.—Copyright, 1929, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Editorial Opinion.

THE WORLD COURT.

Whether or not the United States enters the World court is a matter of indifference to probably ninety-nine out of a hundred Americans. Their impression about the court is that in some way it is linked up with the League of Nations, with which they positively will have nothing to do. The United States has gotten along pretty well for considerably over a hundred years without hitching up with Europe; and apparently most Americans are convinced that for it now to assume overseas obligations, with possible hidden strings to them, would be as unwise as they deem it unnecessary. The absence of excitement in this country over the refusal of the other members of the World court to accept the senate's reservations showed how little real interest Americans feel in the matter. The fact that three years have since elapsed, without the court even being mentioned, shows that there is no present demand for our rushing into it.

At the same time the United States is committed to joining the World court, whenever the guarantees embodied in the senate reservations of January 27, 1926, are given by the signatories. All that has stood between the United States and membership in the court for the past three years is the last half of the fifth reservation, which would prevent the court from entertaining, without the consent of this country, any request for an advisory opinion touching "any dispute or question in which the United States has or claims interest." The communication that Secretary Kellogg has just addressed to the signatories suggests that the objections to this reservation may be overcome by protecting the interests of the United States in "some other way or by some other formula."

What has prompted this eleventh hour, fifty-ninth minute move on the part of the Coolidge administration to remove the one obstacle to the United States entering the World court is a matter for speculation. One guess is as good as another. When the reservations were first under examination abroad, Mr. Coolidge declined to interpret them. When they had been rejected he refused to reopen the question with the senate. The sudden revival of the subject by his secretary of state, without either mandate or popular demand therefor, comes like a flash of heat lightning across the evening horizon of his administration.

The language of the reservations is not important. Some other formula might do just as well. The indispensable quality is certainly that the interests of this country would be safeguarded; and no formula can hope for ratification by the senate, whatever the executive may think of it, which does not meet that test squarely and unequivocally.—Detroit Free Press.

FUTURE OF THE SKYSCRAPER.

The skyscraper, America's most important contribution to architecture, is the center of a lively controversy that is world-wide in scope. To accept it or not to accept it is the question in many of the large cities abroad and not a few American municipalities are giving serious thought to the matter. Able authorities are enlisted on both sides of the argument.

Germany and Austria frankly admire the huge, towering piles of masonry that are the pride of many American cities. Paris is just as frankly opposed to their intrusion and has no desire to compete with New York in impressiveness of skyline.

The question of health enters these debates with regularity. The New York chapter of the American Institute of Architects is heartily in favor of limiting the height of all buildings used as dwellings, on the ground that all crowding is unwholesome, and is all the more so if sunlight and air are excluded. This same argument is repeatedly advanced against skyscrapers that house office workers several hours daily.

Whatever else may be said for or against the scraper, their presence in great numbers in any locality complicates the traffic problem to an alarming degree. One of these buildings, like those in New York, may house workers equivalent in number to the population of a good sized village. The jam of humanity in lower New York any morning, noon or evening illustrates this impressively. Cities giving thought to the problem of expansion must decide if they are to expand outward or upward. For some, the former is impossible. It is a question each community must settle for itself, for expansion is inevitable for most of them.—Columbus Dispatch.

May Yet Prove Useful.

Some good may come from spinach yet. A fellow named Justin Christopleau, who is called "The Burbank of France," has made it grow eleven inches tall, and if he can add a little to that it may eventually be all right to sit under and read.—New York Post.

Prayer [illegible] in the gospel of His Son, makes His eternal [illegible] known.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, Feb. 27—Every big New York hotel faces bankruptcy its first year. People are skittish about a new inn. They wait for others to break the ice and that is why free board is frequently offered to notables and there are usually glittering questionables willing to accept the handout.

Once it is noised about a hotel is housing people of importance the herd instinct prevails and continued prosperity depends upon the service standards maintained by the management. One of the tricks of a new hotel to create a prosperous air is inexpensive, but effective.

At dusk lights are turned on in every outside room and employes circulate about to throw their shadows on the curtains of windows. This gives passer-by the idea of bustle and life. Page boys are also instructed to shout important names in the lobby and dining-rooms.

Several years ago the director of what is now one of New York's best paying hotels scanned the arrival list gloomily, then took an elevator to the roof and leaped to the court, and some thirty stories below and eternity. The hotel had been open six weeks and a mammoth investment seemed a total loss.

In another important hotel a year ago the total number of guests was eight many weeks afterward. An impoverished society woman was employed to engineer a series of fashionable dinner parties and a press agent spread the news in the society columns. The tide was turned and the hotel prospers.

Sometimes a murder or scandal affects a hotel, but not often. The scene of one of New York's most famous murders was the Broadway Central—the Fiske-Stokes affair—and while it is one of the oldest hotels and off beaten track, enlists excellent patronage.

One of the newest hotels—a gaudy structure appealing to a Broadway clientele—was recently the scene of a sensational underworld murder, and many thought the place forever doomed. It suffered lack of patronage for a few weeks, and that was all. New York quickly forgets.

A manifesto has been issued on table cards in the Ritz restaurants reading: "The management requests our esteemed patrons to refrain from dancing unless in evening attire."

Mississippi Jones, the familiar ebony-hued hackman, was missed along the Main Stem recently along with his antiquated sea-goer and ancient nag. His straw plug hat and pearl-buttoned yellow overcoat were long a part of the Broadway picture—about the last of his curb-roaming tribe. He braved the lean days with grinning and stoic cheer until illness came and his horse and gig were seized for debt. But a proverbial good fellow heard of his plight and Mississippi and his hack have been restored to the gay boulevard, for a little while at least.

* * *

Dublin Terry is a Fifth avenue hackman who also carries on. In old Delmonico days he was always out in front of that restaurant in the wind and rain. Today he ranges farther north and there is a touch of pathos in his effort to lift his ballyhoo of "Kerridge, sir! Very exclusive!" above the motor madness.

The conventional shade of blonde hair is rarely seen these days among those who want to be considered "smart." It is touched up to resemble that shade of taffy reached only after a long pulling. The Sun and the Clock.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

"Why is it that since December ?? afternoons are daily growing longer, the mornings continued growing shor about December 27, since when been stationary till this day, Ja when we have already the afternoon tw one minutes longer, but the morning s shortest of the year?—H. Seiliger, Oak

It is because clocks and watches keep sun time, and they agree with four times in a year. Our forenoons an ternoons are artificial. The sun divides the day always into two prac equal portions; clocks at all times them unequal and when "daylight prevails the afternoons are arbitrarily two hours longer than the forenoons.

It would require more space than I give to make clear the special discrep to which you refer. The clock makes twenty-four time parts into which a rotation of the earth on its axis w spect to the sun is divided, all exactly to each other. But when measured by sun's motion they are not equal. The equality is not due to variation in the at which the earth turns on its axis, for is no such variation, but to a curious of its revolution around the sun, the ch which is increased by the inclination of earth's equator to the plane of its around the sun.

It arises from the fact that the earth's is eccentric, so that its distance from th varies. When it is nearer it travels fa when farther, slower. But its rate of tion on its axis is always the same.

Now, if the earth's orbit were a circ that it went round with unchanging s noon would always occur at the same In that case there would be no diverg between clock noon and sun noon.

Now, follow the earth on to its aph position. During its journey the mo its orbit has been gradually slowing, th the rate of rotation still remains the s In consequence the sun noon has been proaching the clock noon, and forenoon afternoon will be equal.

In the part of the orbit between July October the orbital rate, although it gaining, continues relatively slower tha rotation rate, so that the sun noon ahead of the clock noon, and the aftern are shortened. But from October ha January the rapid gain in the orbital gradually restores the balance, and clock noon and sun noon once more together.

The obliquity of the equator increases extent of the departure between the noons, and moreover changes the time year when the difference is at its greatest when it disappears. I can only state the combined results. The two times about April 15, June 14, September 1 December 24. The clock is farthest a about February 14, and farthest behind a November 1—Copyright, 1929, Internat Feature Service, Inc.

THREE VACANCIES SEEN

[illegible] Mentioned for Secretary of Agriculture, Wants Californian for Portfolio

By GEORGE R. HOLMES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27—Herbert [illegible] is experiencing tough sledding [illegible] completion of his cabinet per[illegible] cording to all indications [illegible] behind the veil of secrecy that [illegible] the president elect has thrown about [illegible] cabinet [illegible] there [illegible] today that there are still three [illegible] vacancies in the slate [illegible] twelve [illegible] attorney general [illegible] secretaryship of agriculture and the secretaryship of commerce [illegible] Hoover [illegible] days [illegible] the capital as many as [illegible] some [illegible] to see [illegible]. Rumors have been [illegible] Washington [illegible] on the [illegible] there be an eleventh hour [illegible] up and down Pennsylvania av.

Maybe a Democrat

There was one [illegible] report [illegible] day [illegible] reports [illegible] Mr. Hoover was [illegible] the idea of offering [illegible] to a Democrat—William D. Mitchell of Minnesota, now [illegible] general of the United States. The [illegible] Democrat [illegible] mentioned for the [illegible] that the president [illegible] serious dilemma. He [illegible] at the same time [illegible] Senator [illegible] Borah, Republican of Idaho and [illegible] Stone [illegible] supreme [illegible] already declined [illegible] according to the [illegible].

Three names were said to be still on the president elect's desk today for the agricultural portfolio—A. G. Glover [illegible] farmer [illegible] Taber of Ohio, master of the National Grange and Ex-Gov. Samuel R. McKelvie of Nebraska. Thomas D. Campbell of Montana, the wheat king of the northwest, is said to have been [illegible] He has returned [illegible] here [illegible] Mr. Hoover [illegible] cabinet [illegible] discussed.

Wants Californian

Mr. Hoover was represented today as [illegible] Henry M. Robinson, Los Angeles economist and banker to take a cabinet [illegible] with the understanding that he will become secretary of the treasury upon the retirement of Secretary Mellon, which is expected not later than [illegible] of the Hoover term.

Robinson has been doing a considerable amount of cabinet scouting for Mr. Hoover. His friends assert he has performed these duties as a matter of friendship for the president elect and not because he wants—or would take—any place at Mr. Hoover's disposal.

Clarence M. Woolley, the radiator manufacturer, who has frequently been all [illegible] with Mr. Hoover on economic [illegible] in the past few years [illegible] possibility.

Cleaning Up Details

[illegible] director of [illegible] under Hoover and [illegible] a great deal of [illegible] the commerce post has been [illegible] for another [illegible] according to reports today.

Save for his cabinet difficulties Mr. Hoover is rapidly cleaning up the details incident to his induction into office next Monday.

His inaugural speech comparatively short as inaugurals go, has been completed and is in the printers' hands. It probably will take half an hour in delivery, it is said.

Announcement will be made in a few days of what Washington has long known: the appointment of George Akerson, former Minneapolis newspaperman, to be secretary to the president. There will be two others but Akerson's will be the principal secretaryship. Lawrence Richey, who has been one of the Hoover secretaries for many years, will have one of the other posts.

POISON GAS IS USED IN BERLIN ROBBERIES

BERLIN—Poison gas was used by a band of swindlers to rob Berlin merchants of more than $25,000. The swindlers claimed to have invented a new apparatus for the production of pharmaceutical goods and offered to demonstrate the invention in the private offices of the merchants.

The pharmaceutical product, however, was poison gas which made the merchant unconscious while the demonstrators presumably protected themselves with gas masks. After robbing their victim they disappeared.

Capable Acting and Expert Staging Mark Success of Play Given by DeMolay

"Three Wise Fools," Comedy-Drama, Presented by Local Talent, Under Direction of Miss Foreman, Enjoyed by Audience at [illegible] Auditorium, Repeated Tonight

Grumpy, blustering, lovable Theodore Findley, with a heart of [illegible] great gold [illegible] general [illegible] learned Mr. Richard [illegible] and [illegible] dignified Hon. James Trumbull, "Three Wise Fools," gave a remarkable [illegible] comedy-drama [illegible] romance [illegible] the play [illegible] last night before an audience [illegible] 750 at Central Junior High school auditorium.

The play, written in three acts by Austin Strong, is the fourth play given by Marion Chapter No. [illegible], Order of DeMolay, under the supervision of Miss Lucile Foreman, dramatic coach at Harding High school. Tonight the second and last performance will be given.

Mr. Findley, seated in a comfortable chair before a small [illegible] in the living room of a Washington [illegible] home, [illegible] his nightly [illegible] of solitaire, is completely [illegible] from his calm, well-ordered [illegible] life by Dr. Gaunt's dynamic statement that men over 40 years of age could be chloroformed because they are dead. Dr. Gaunt's belief is that the three men should literally [illegible] among the buttercups and gain back their youth and [illegible] outlook on life.

Again Mr. Findley receives a blow [illegible] his well-ordered life when Poole, [illegible] police headquarters is announced. [illegible] in [illegible] hesitating sentences tells the two men that the third man of their Three Musketeer triangle, the Hon. James Trumbull, is being guarded by the police since the escape of [illegible] the [illegible] from prison with the threat that he [illegible] to get Trumbull who sentenced him.

Love Theme Revealed

During this discussion G[illegible] [illegible] nephew of Mr. Findley, a [illegible] fun-loving youth of wealth, with hundreds of love affairs to his credit and a smile that was one of the highlights of the play, comes in and Dr. Gaunt tells him the tragic love affair of the three men, who all fell in love with the same girl, Rena, and were all refused.

Trumbull again starts the play moving when he announced the Rena, the girl the three men loved, has died and willed them her child Sydney. The men begin to make arrangements for welcoming a tiny [illegible] into their home when an attractive young woman enters and after questioning by the judge announces that she is Sydney. There the plot [illegible] an ominous turn [illegible] thickens.

Sydney falls in love with [illegible] who for the first time in his life realizes a responsibility and gets a job. His first pay he buys her a wrist watch with the entire check. Needless to say Sydney has revolutionized the bachelor home.

Undergoes Change

Mr. Findley even goes so far as to put a nickel in the cup every time he swears and to vow that if he ever finds a buttercup he's going to roll among it. Dr. Gaunt, whose person [illegible] takes the thing [illegible] much notice as the gruff Findley is even more pleasant than ever and the judge actually takes to [illegible] gallant toasts to Sydney at her birthday dinner, and smiling more than usual.

But Penny the Duck appears in the second act and Sydney, who knows him, helps him escape from the house before he kills the judge who sentenced him. It is proven that she has mysteriously left the house every night and that she knows Penny.

Immediately the old men turn from Sydney, not stopping to analyze her actions. Gordon is positive of her innocence and sets out to prove it.

The third act opens and the two men, Mr. Findley and Dr. Gaunt, are in their accustomed places, Findley playing solitaire and Gaunt reading his medical magazine. Both are agreed and the judge too when he enters later, that they're through with women forever. During all the grief of the moment, Saunders, the capable housekeeper, gives notice that she's leaving.

But the audience is aware of an undercurrent of anxiety among them over the outcome of Sydney and the police for she has made such an agreeable change in their lives that there's an empty spot in the house.

Gordon enters and in his talk discloses that Poole believes her innocent of any crime and that she's in the car outside, not wanting to come in the house where she thinks she isn't wanted.

She's Welcomed Back

Gordon proves conclusively to the old men that it was Sydney who blew the police whistle alarming the detectives outside and warning them of Penny's presence in the house. Relieved more than anxious to show Sydney that they love her and want her back, the girl is welcomed into the house by her three old men and almost immediately asked by Gordon to marry him.

Benny brought in during the scene, proves that it was he and not Sydney, [illegible] John [illegible] who [illegible] the judge [illegible] the man that he will [illegible] in a few weeks. Sydney is [illegible] and the last few moments of the play shows that The Three Wise Fools agree that a man can still live in [illegible] and [illegible] time [illegible] in the buttercups in the romance of Sydney and Gordon.

No better amateur [illegible] was possible in this charming play than that given by the following cast:

Sherman W. [illegible], Mr. Theodore Findley; [illegible] Dr. Richard Gaunt; [illegible], Hon. James Trumbull; Wade McMahan, Miss Violet [illegible], Sydney Fairchild; Miss [illegible], Mrs. Saunders; Carl W. [illegible], Gordon Schuyler; [illegible] Quackenbush, [illegible] Benny the Duck; [illegible] Gray, [illegible] Poole; James W. [illegible], [illegible] manservant; Donald Harrold, Clancy, a detective; Robert L. [illegible], Douglas, another servant in the household and Claude Peck, a policeman.

Furniture for the beautifully furnished living room of the New York home was loaned through the courtesy of the Fennon Furniture Co.

Music preceding the play and during the short intermissions was furnished by the DeMolay augmented orchestra.

PACKARD Outsold Them All!

A Remarkable Endorsement of the New Packard Eights By the World's Most Discriminating Market

ACCORDING to the official registrations, more new Packards were delivered to purchasers in New York County during October, November and December, 1928, than any other make except Ford. Thus did the world's most discriminating motor car market place its unqualified approval upon the new Packard Eights.

There would be enough glory and recommendation for Packard if it had led only those cars in its own price class . . . which it does and has done for many years. But this record was made in competition with cars priced from $500 to $2000 less than the average Packard.

There can be but one reason for this astonishing success. Packards are purchased on their economic worth—their dollar value, as represented by greater satisfaction, longer life and low maintenance costs.

If you would like to know more about the many superiorities of Packard manufacture and the advantages of Packard ownership, we will welcome an opportunity to demonstrate them fully. Just call at our salesrooms or, if you prefer, telephone us and we will bring a Packard Eight to your door.

If you desire to buy out of income, you will find the Packard Payment Plan most attractive. Many take possession of their new cars without any cash outlay—and with the small monthly payments made smaller because the used car allowance exceeds the down payment on the new car.

Meditations OF A Married Woman

—BY HELEN ROWLAND—

If Men Become "Style Conscious"

THE [illegible] man will need [illegible] coats [illegible] clothes this season [illegible] be properly [illegible] with a [illegible] of unsuspecting helpmeet [illegible] the bliss to the men is as nothing to [illegible] the spectacle amazement with which it has struck the wife.

Any woman who has had to buy [illegible] his ONE suit of evening clothes, his one clean boiled shirt twice a year ever since they were married, is probably aghast at the news.

For the struggle of the average [illegible] to lure even a better [illegible] for what her husband puts [illegible] a new suit of clothes now and then.

His unfailing answer to all her pleadings and arguments is "What's the matter with the one I got?"

Persuading him to throw away an old hat or discard a faded pair of knickers takes all her strength, tact and finesse. And even then she often has to work on his sentiment by recalling how beautifully groomed he always was during their courtship days and asking him if he doesn't [illegible] her any more.

A real germ of many a divorce has been the moth-eaten college sweater or the mouldy pair of hunting boots which a heartless wife has surreptitiously sent to the starving heathens.

As for inducing a man to keep two dinner coats or two evening suits on hand—huh! He would as soon think of keeping a harem. Two [illegible] for cars. Yes. Two wives [illegible] perhaps. But never more than one collar button, one clean evening shirt and one sarcophagus [illegible] at a time.

Besides, will the Merchant Tailors kindly tell Father how he is going to hang his twenty suits of clothes on the one hook he has always been allowed in Mother's clothes closet? Or where he will squeeze in his twelve [illegible] among the twenty-four chapeaux on Mother's hat shelf?

And if he becomes clothes conscious and buys himself a light new overcoat to replace the faded fringed one he has been wearing for the last three winters, where will the money come from for Mother's ermine evening wrap?

Once men may have had the time for dolling up in brocaded coats, lace ruffles, silk stockings and silver buckled shoes. But time is money nowadays—and gasoline and golf. And there's no glamor about a [illegible] fat and a pair of tweed knickers!

Mis men! You can lead a modern man into frilled pajamas and lavender cravats and white satin evening clothes—but you can't make him wear them.

Not if he's married—and you're his wife.

Diagnosing Love

LOVE, like a common cold, is awfully hard to diagnose. Nobody can tell you how it started, whether it is serious or superficial, or just how long it will last.

One reason why a man is not as curious as a woman is because a woman leaves him nothing much to be curious about.

Making a girl believe that she is the only woman in your life is no feat of diplomacy. Try making her believe something she doesn't WANT to believe.

Why is it that when a man is suffering from loss of appetite a woman always [illegible] him an enticing meal [illegible] when he's feeling a touch of sentimental [illegible] she rushes to offer him mere kisses.

The one real beauty of the mind—but [illegible] has to be awfully brilliant to [illegible] mind a man to [illegible]

What the average man doesn't [illegible] is [illegible] what a playful kitten does with a ball of yarn. He begins by recklessly chasing it around—and ends by getting all tangled up.

The strangest phenomenon of this jazz generation is that young lovers have managed to watch John Barrymore, John Gilbert and the late Valentino night after night without learning a single thing about the real art of love-making beyond a rudimentary knowledge of puppy petting.

Petting is the childish pastime of the sentimentally unemployed and the emotionally bankrupt.

Listerine kills 200,000,000 germs in 15 seconds

Did you realize that Listerine was so powerful?

Hard to believe, isn't it, when you reflect how pleasant and safe Listerine is?

Yet in repeated tests employing the stubborn B. Typhosus (typhoid) germ used by the Government to test antiseptics, full strength Listerine killed 200 millions in 15 seconds!

Now you can understand why you should use Listerine to check ordinary colds and sore throat—both caused by germs.

Keep a bottle handy and use it daily, especially after exposure to germ laden crowds. It helps you ward off trouble. Write for our elaborate free book "Personal Hygiene."

Tunnicliff? You're bound to see two left hand gloves at the top of the left hand top drawer in that funny little wardrobe by the side of the bed— should say the bunk

For the honorable Luke ... this occasion at any rate to hesitate was ... Was he not acting in a professional capacity?

As Harriet made the request the other Mr Tunnicliff was ... up the glittering gangway from shore to yacht Harriet standing at the head of the gangway turned to face him just under one of the constellations which lit the incline She wore the green evening dress recently bestowed upon her by the largess of Lord Furber with her old olive-tinted cloak negligently thrown over it and she was full of the sweet consciousness of looking very well in an environment of gigantic expense Full also of the consciousness of being femininely equal to any number of men friendly or hostile She was and had been for some days the only effectively functioning woman in the great yacht for Mrs. Bumption was still set aside and nobody except her husband had laid eyes on her since she had been put to bed Mrs Bumption was indeed forgotten by the world of the yacht

Harriet had plainly begun a new life far more exciting and agreeable than that of hotels Not only was she active in the control of a complicated domestic organism not only had she the sense of semi-tyrannic power—she was a queen among several score of male beings She had electrified the social atmosphere of the whole world Every man on board was aware of her and felt the propriety of flattering her and most of them found pleasure in flattering her even in speaking to her and being spoken to by her And had not the ... insisted upon having the advantage and tonic of her society in the selectest haunt of Monte Carlo The honorable Luke was her obedient errand boy

And now the wireless operator grandson of an earl and with the most disdainful nostrils in all Monte Carlo was approaching her and she wondered how he would greet her The young man was handsome and handsomely clad as became one who in port had nothing to do but to exist beautifully He halted at the summit of the gangway with a mien which quite undesignedly might have given to the unwary the impression that he was the owner of the yacht He raised his hat in a manner unsurpassably graceful and impertinent the curve of the arm which lifted the hat must obviously have been inherited from his late grandfather

Startling News

Good evening Miss Perkins said he in a low caressing voice I see the ... evening is about to start

Yes And if you'd been a minute later you'd have missed the start.

And you are still vamping I perceive His tone was impeccably courtly The way you asked my poor cousin to fetch your glove — a masterpiece of the vamping art. I needn't ask if you've been to Hollywood Miss Perkins You must have spent arduous months in the studios of that astonishing city

Mr Valentino I believe Harriet responded bowing But haven't you got anything more to tell me

The wireless operator replied quickly and with relish

I certainly have something more to tell you and I promise you I won't tell any one else because I feel it a piece of information which you and I ought to share with nobody I've just been to the Cafe de Paris and in passing the Hotel de Paris on my way home who do you think I saw looking out of a second floor window and sort of hiding

Give it up said Harriet promptly

Lady Furber

Harriet quite failed to control a movement of extreme surprise

You may well jump said the speaker I daresay you will jump still more within the next few hours Look at this

He drew from his hip pocket a folded copy of a London evening newspaper and displayed the front page on which flared headlines relating to the Vanguard and to Lord Furber

Just come And probably Lady Furber has just come too What wife in her position would not have come? The thing that surprises me is that the whole visiting population of Monte Carlo is not congregated around this notorious vessel However we may expect sightseers in plenty tomorrow morning

Do you know Lady Furber? asked Harriet

No How could I aspire so high

But I know her by sight Her real ... is unmistakable And you may take it from me that the lady I have seen is the wife of the Baron Furber, owner of this yacht and of a ... Harriet ... to recompense herself—to see whether all these vamps ... on board When she finds that only one vamp is on board she may decide that even one vamp is more than is strictly necessary

I think I ought to call at the Hotel de Paris Harriet smiled

Yes and leave your card

Harriet thought she heard a footstep on the stairs below and she waited impatiently for the honorable Luke to reappear But the honorable Luke was dilatory At length he came with a long white scrap in his hand She took the scrap examined it and thanked the bearer with an exquisite smile

Well your news is very interesting she said to the wireless operator who was standing silent Good night

Good night said the operator And good luck—at the tables—and elsewhere

He hurried away with an unceremonious bow and at the same time ... troubling to conceal the gesture from Harriet winked at the honorable Luke

Seated in the car by the side of the honorable Luke Harriet ought surely to have been in meditation about the disturbing arrival of her old friend Lady Furber But in fact she was at first occupied with thoughts of the honorable Luke

Was there anything in the charge just brought against her by his cousin Had she been vamping Luke She was interested in this question only in so far as she wanted to understand herself What the possible consequences of the alleged vamping might be to Luke himself did not trouble in the least She had a suspicion that she liked Luke He had been very rude to her he had rebuffed a friendly advance from her but she liked him He had neither the magnificent style nor the magnificent figure of his sinister cousin but she liked him He was moody and reserved his manner of putting her into the car was strangely reserved he sat down by her as though she had the plague but she liked him

The point was would she have despatched any other man on board to retrieve the glove Well she admitted that she would not Nor would she have used to any other man quite the tone she had used to Luke The tone was in all probability a challenge to resume intimacy All which possibly did amount to what the wireless operator would call vamping

Motoring With Luke

The car which made no more noise than a cat purring mounted the steep hill on third gear it being one of those cars for which gradients have no significance worth mentioning In a few seconds as it seemed the machine had arrived at the doors of the club An attendant opened the door The honorable Luke stepped out Harriet remained seated The honorable Luke impassively waited

Mr Tunnicliff said she at length will you get in again and ask the driver to move on a bit and then stop I should like to have a little chat with you if you don't object

As you wish said the honorable Luke

Harriet was obeyed

We're very ... Harriet observed

Yes said the honorable Luke

The car had come to a standstill in the shadow of some trees which ... the road A tram descending the hill deafened their ears and shook the foundation of the earth

Harriet turned her head to see Luke's face

Do please look at me she asked persuasively but with a touch of warning impatience

Luke obediently moved his head and looked at her in a strictly noncommittal way

I'm going to ask you to do me a favor said Harriet Will you

If I can

But naturally you can

Conscientiously

Of course

You surprise me

The fair haired slightly nervous timid easily flushing young man offered this piece of insolence in a gruff half inarticulate voice Harriet smiled as though he had paid her a compliment The honorable Luke glanced away

I promised to be at the club at 11 o'clock said Harriet But now I find I must pay an important call at the Hotel de Paris I might be kept there half an hour even an hour I want you to say nothing about it You could wait in the car Lord Furber will expect you to see me into the rooms though I've got my ticket all right I'm a member there every season And if his lordship asks why I'm so late—

You're so late the honorable Luke corrected

I'm so late Harriet agreed say I insisted on going for a little run up to the Corniche and to look at the scenery

But you can see that for you...

I can and I will But I want you to back me up See

I see But I can't do it conscientiously

Why not

Because you're evidently up to something that you think his lordship wouldn't care for And it's no part of my job to deceive him I know you're a regular conspirator like he is But I'm not a conspirator except under his orders

Then you won't oblige me

Oh yes I will I didn't say I wouldn't do it All I said was I couldn't do it conscientiously But I'll do it

You're a dear said Harriet I knew I could trust you Tell the driver to go on to the Hotel de Paris will you

Not yet said the honorable Luke You say you knew you could trust me But you aren't trusting me

Yes I am

No you aren't You haven't told me what's at the bottom of all this You must

But I can't possibly do that

Then you don't trust me Miss Perkins I'm not going to trouble to tell you that I shouldn't breathe a word or that I should be like the grave and so on because you ought to know all about that. You do know But the fact is you're too proud and stuck up to tell me everything You think you'll tell me just as much as you think you will and I shall accept it But I shan't Either I'll be trusted entirely or I won't be trusted at all Take it or leave it

For an instant Harriet suspected that somehow the honorable Luke must have overheard the own ultimatum to Lord Furber a few nights earlier so exactly was he adopting the attitude which she had adopted But she dismissed the silly suspicion perceiving that the attitude was exactly as natural to Luke as it had been to herself In other words in one matter at any rate they were kindred minds, they had the same pride and the same obstinacy

She put her hand lightly on his arm and moving her head looked into his eyes in the gloom of the limousine And smiled

"You're quite right" she said Confidence is either complete or it's nothing And now I come to think of it I should love to trust you completely

She removed her hand from his arm and he immediately put his hand on her arm Assuredly they were very cozy in the car whose interior was like a tiny but utterly comfortable boudoir—and safer than any boudoir from interruption

I must make it short said Harriet because we haven't much time

Pooh said Luke The boss won't be leaving the club until ... in the morning! Go ahead "

You're very autocratic Harriet murmured

It's the only way to treat some people said Luke at the same time gazing at her in a manner which was not in the least in the world autocratic

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M LEWIS

STILL warm It was raining when I let Jubilee down out of the window by the rope in his teeth and the rain came down in such a stream from the hole in the eave trough over the window that he got a snoot full of it before his bussel landed on the ground I tried to keep the rain water out of his face letting it hit on the top of my head but it ran down and around my ears and run off my chin in a stream that hit him in the snoot and the rest of it ran down my back and dripped off of the end of my shirttail I am glad it was a warm morning or I might of got pneumonia and then they would of had to stick a flag out for me

We had quite an idea this morning whilst I was milking the cows and we had sent Banty to take a shoot at the hospital and see if the flag was out We are all going to practice up on the Star Spangled Banner and then we will go and sing it in the front of the hospital and maybe Uncle Heed will hear us Then if he likes that we'll sing There Never Was A Coward Where the Shamrock Grows We started practicing on the Star Spangled Banner this morning and I hadn't used my voice doing any singing for so long that I was full of it and it came rolling out till it filled up the barn and rattled the doors rattle All the bunch was singing with me and I was yelling at the old cow's hat like in time to the music and I had my face up and wide open and I guess the cow got scairt and she gave a kick that knocked the stool out from under me and would of left me hanging in the air if I wasn't as heavy as I am and then my face struck his face through the ... to see what was the matter We all told him what we were doing and he said that would be fine and all the patients would get well to a... to get away from there if we sing in front of the hospital but he said to not sing it any more in the barn because it might scare the cows and upset them and that might have some effect on their milk

Just then Banty got back and said the flag is still flying and then he saw a nurse in the window and she waved at him He says when he gets old enough he is going to marry a nurse and Feetie said Yes and who else And he asked her what she meant and she wanted to know if he thought a nurse would marry a half pint like him and everyone laughed and he got sore I guess he feels as big as anyone

The flag was still there after ... So I guess ain't dead

Madge Considers Means to Conquer Plans of Philip Veritzen

AT Noel's ... queer ... evening, his ... I felt as if ... had ... ered ... and ... courage ... his ... plans for ... attempting the ... that ... this ... Princess Olga ... respective ... infatuation ... Mary and Noel ... had ... Philip Veritzen ... had ... plan ... that his ... still ... Olga.

... Noel ... was ... with a ... falling ... feathers ... I made ... as ... as possible and answered with a mendacity ... the recording angel would forgive ...

... I have not forgotten ... father I know that he ... opposed to your marrying Mary

I don't think it is that so much as that he wishes me to marry Princess Olga Noel replied slowly as if he were trying to put ... pieces into ... puzzle.

"He really likes Mary ... seemed ... absolutely mad upon the subject of my marrying Olga whom I supposed to be ... Jackson

Now I realize why ... I know that ... you see Always my father kept a photograph of Queen Olga upon his private desk It was the only ... I ever knew his mother ... and he feels ... my father ... as too ... and ... the ... she was alone I have seen her like that ... and look ... with hatred distorting her ... he ... I ... early—and I ... going to find it easy ... Queen Olga's daughter

I ... impulsively and ...

I know I said feeling within me a ... resentment against Philip Veritzen ... thoughtlessness ... his ... little wife ... let him dream ... feel only ... paragraph

... that this is your only ... If you break the engagement with Olga your father never will forgive you ... tears she tires of you—

Oh! I see your plan he said ... But ... again I am afraid he will ... terrible angry anyway He ... that having ... her ...

I had no answer ready for this ... which I felt was only too true and after a ... Noel ...

If only I were not so dependent upon my father he said You see he has it in his power to withhold all my ... property from me until I am thirty five all that is, except the small income which now supplies for my small wants but which never would care for a wife properly And I never was taught anything useful Even my musical ... fitted me for anything practical Those months of playing ... that night club were torture to me I'll never go back to that even if I starve If only I could get further ... in my scores Who do you know the few things I have sold haven't paid for my piano rent Of course I never dared to put them out under my own name for my father would have considered that I had disgraced it so I used the name Boris Hamiloff You may have happened to see it sometime he finished modestly

Indeed I've seen it, Noel I answered trying to make my voice matter-of-fact for I did not wish to startle him in his shy confidences by showing the surprise I felt at his revelation For I had read several written comments upon the musical work of Boris Hamiloff and realized that while the name had no particular financial value yet he already had secured a distinct foothold in the world of real music And I wish to congratulate you Your father will regret sometime that you did not use your own name Boris Hamiloff's work is recognized as masterly

He flushed with pleasure I'd like to tell you something about something I've been at work on for years he said— An ambitious thing enough—a musical drama—almost operatic with historical background But I cannot get the libretto right I'm no good on that end And I haven't any idea of how it should be produced If only I inherited some of my father's genius But I am my mother's ... She was musical but I have heard my father say she had no sense of the dramatic and that she was too sensitive and self conscious to be at ease and sure of herself as a successful person must be"

My heart was hot against Philip Veritzen Suddenly I felt an overwhelming desire to prove that Noel's genius was fully as great as that of his father It was as if a ghostly sign of yearning had reached me from the long dead lips of Noel's gentle and unappreciated mother I wanted to answer that wraith-like appeal Yet how could I manage it?

If I Were A Man | If I Were A Girl

I WOULDN'T be a ... moncalf

I wouldn't sit around with an adoring expression and a blank mind whenever the object of my affections was in sight I wouldn't gaze at her like a dying calf and go off into soft and sappy dreams about her as soon as she was out of sight

If she appeared in a new dress I wouldn't sit and gap at her in dumb and aimless admiration If her hand touched mine by mistake or she leaned close to me in a crowd I wouldn't go off into the silence wrapped in an ecstatic haze and a silly expression

A girl enjoys admiration and devotion but she wants it to be verbal occasionally And the swain whose adoration makes him merely foolish makes the girl feel foolish too No girl enjoys the sensation and sooner or later she'll take it out on the man

A mooncalf and his devotion may be flattering at first but to the average girl they're just a headache in the end

I WOULDN'T pretend to be hard boiled

If I didn't care whether men liked me or not I'd be just as hard boiled as I pleased but if I had any hope at all of getting off a boy friend or landing him into a husband I'd put another record on the victrola I wouldn't loudly voice my contempt for the sweet old-fashioned girl I wouldn't scoff at sentiment as being mid-Victorian and fossilly I'd as ... I wouldn't refer to children as annoying little pests and I wouldn't boast that I couldn't even darn a stocking or boil water without scorching it

I wouldn't bring that no man would ever get ME into a kitchen to cook his meals Men may like the frank and sophisticated damsel in theory but when it comes to matrimony—well we'll take the girl who can bake the kind of pie that mother used to make

Oh the girl who at least pretends she can

SPRING TONIC

It is beyond question that Ice Cream is the best spring tonic. Especially Tender's Ice Cream with all the real butter fat and the abundance of milk solids, so essential for the lime and other bone and teeth building vitamines. It is no wonder so many wise-to-it-people serve it as a dessert three times a day. And the price is so cheap during this good will friend making campaign, that it is a sin to pass it by.

Congress Represented

In addition to the officers, diplomats and governors parties, Congress will be literally represented and political organizations are expected to be there in force. The [illegible] of these unofficial units is the [illegible] Curtis Club of New York which will be present under the direction of its president Mattie [illegible] Glaser. The club has reserved 16 boxes and 100 tickets and intends to make its presence known in [illegible] manner Glaser has kept secret.

The list of other unofficial guests who have already reserved boxes and tickets reads like a national social register.

From these notables Mrs. Dougherty expects to get enough money to provide handsome gifts to many charities. Four years ago she was able to hand over $12,700 to them and she hopes to do better this time. Of the total $10,000 will go to the Firemen's and Policemen's Fund for Widows and Orphans and the remainder to the Community Chest which embraces many worthy causes.

Four years ago almost everything necessary for the ball was donated including services of workers for it. This year the hall will have to be paid for and perhaps some of the music. But that merely cuts down the net income and does not threaten loss. The boxes alone will bring in at least $70,000 and they are almost all sold.

Many Reservations

Mrs. Dougherty's office in a downtown office building is full of activities all day long as orders for reservations pour in from all sections of the country.

Since Feb 21 a detachment of Washington debutantes under Miss Lina Day Deneen daughter of Senator Deneen of Illinois have been stationed in the lobbies of local banks where they will offer tickets for sale to callers. Mrs. Cabot Stevens commanded another group in department and clothing stores.

This procedure is somewhat at variance with the precedent established just before the first inaugural ball in 1809 when President Madison came into office. At that time tickets were sold over the bar in a well and favorably known saloon here.

For Frail, Weak Children McCoy's Tablets Will Help

The little ones who are backward and listless with no appetite and who hesitate to join in their frolicking games with other children.

They need help—for years McCoy's Tablets sugar coated and easy to take have been known as a sterling builder of health for puny thin children and the cost is so trifling that every anxious mother ought to get them.

Sixty tablets for 60 cents at Henney & Cooper or any drugstore in America and bear in mind if you are not satisfied with the improvement in your child at the end of 30 days—money back.—Adv.

Like an Open Fire on a Winter's Night

When the bitter blasts of Winter wind scream 'round the house, when icy fingers rattle the window panes—nothing compares with the comfort and security of a blazing crackling fire in an open fireplace.

There's the same feeling of security against the cutting winds of Adversity in a savings account in this strong bank.

Some Day

the death of a relative may bring to you an interest, more or less direct, in the settlement of the decedent's estate.

If there is no will it may be absolutely necessary to have an administrator appointed, in order that transfer of property may be made in accordance with law. This is especially true where real estate is included.

You may be called upon to help in selecting a suitable administrator and it is important that this selection should be carefully made. If an individual—a relative or friend—is chosen, he becomes charged with unfamiliar duties and responsibilities and is subject to the chance of illness, absence or even death before his task is finished.

For these reasons it is better to name this bank as administrator. It possesses the knowledge, experience, facilities and responsibility to make it ideally qualified while being at all times a service which costs exactly the same as would be allowed an individual.

Keep this in mind, you cannot tell how soon such an occasion may come

A SELECTION from a strange new musical experiment which has created a furore all over Europe will be presented during the Maxwell House concert over the WJZ network of the NBC system at 9 30 o clock Thursday night.

The Viennese composer Ernst Krenek has produced an odd sample of ultra modern music in the form of an opera which he calls Jonny Spielt Auf a recent production at the Metropolitan. INSTEAD of exercise

Too busy for exercises or games? Don t worry. Learn the simple secret, millions know—of the exerciser in the vest pocket box for a dime!

Cascarets give your bowels as much exercise as they get from an hour with the punching bag. Oils salts and ordinary laxatives don t act like Cascarets. These things only produce mechanical or chemical action. You have to keep taking them because they weaken your bowels.

Cascarets strengthen the bowels. They are made from cascara sagrada which stimulates the peristaltic action and exercises the bowel muscles. Nothing else does this. That s why Cascarets give lasting relief from those syptoms of sluggish bowels such as headaches biliousness bloating sallow skin, indigestion no appetite etc. Sales of over [illegible]0 million boxes yearly prove their merit!

Man Marooned In Tymochtee Creek Is Rescued by Wyandot County Official

UPPER SANDUSKY, Feb. 27—W. F. Frank, of Beaver Falls, Pa., was marooned on top of his truck for about three hours in Tymochtee creek four miles west of here on the Upper Sandusky and Forest road last night before being rescued by Sheriff Harvey Stansbury and Deputy Sheriff Raymond Stansbury. The sheriff and his deputy brought the man to safety in a boat and this morning towed the truck out of the water.

Frank, who was enroute to Canton with a truck load of empty chicken crates, removed the barrier which closed the road to traffic and attempted to ford the high water which had crossed the road. As he was about half-way across the approach to the bridge the current swept him into the stream. He spent the night here and this morning left for Canton. The truck is being held by Sheriff Stansbury.

Traffic on the Lincoln highway is being detoured today through Harpster and across to Little Sandusky on account of the high water. It is believed that the peak has been reached and predictions are that the water will begin receding today.

Hardin County Reports

High waters reported in many sections of Hardin county today following the melting of the winter snows and the heavy rainfall of the past 24 hours, will cause but little damage, a survey today showed.

While the Scioto river is running full and has overflowed its banks in sections east of Kenton many smaller creeks and drainage ditches have left their banks inundating many acres of farm land.

Drainage ditches in the Scioto marsh regions, west of here, are running full today, reports from there stated, however, little flood conditions have resulted. Some acreage is under water but no damage will result.

Many acres of land east of here in the vicinity of Pfeiffer station and Hepburn are covered from overflow water from the Scioto river.

District Briefs

MT. GILEAD—Although traffic signal lights are expected to be eventually installed at the dangerous intersection of Main and Union streets here, the council has taken steps to install reflecting signals which will be intrusted to warn the drivers of the crossing. As the state officials have a hand in the location and construction of the traffic signal lights, the signs were purchased more as a temporary measure. This crossing is the intersection of two state routes.

CARDINGTON—The auxiliary of the Cardington post, No. 97 of the American Legion, was entertained by the Daughters of Veterans at their lodge rooms Monday night. The program was featured by a play depicting colonial times. A luncheon followed the program.

PROPERTY OWNERS WIN IN PROTEST

Bucyrus Residents Meet with City Council To Discuss Improvement

BUCYRUS, Feb. 27—Backed by the presence of a delegation of Irving st. property owners, who attended the hearing of protestors before the city council last night, on the proposed improvement of the street, a motion was made by the council to instruct City Solicitor Charles Schaber to draw up the necessary legislation changing the resolution governing the improvement making the assessments of property owners according to the benefits derived, to replace the old method of assessment according to foot frontage. The protest also asked that the new legislation be also effective on the improvements of Bland av., and Highland av., which will be made this summer.

Those offering their protests at the meeting included Attorney Charles Gallinger, and Mrs. Henry Foltz, property owners on Bland av., and Jay Schell, Louis Schaffer, James Cooney, Preston Light and H. B. Ryder, property owners on Irving st. Gallinger, owner of a corner lot on Bland and Sandusky avs., with frontage on Sandusky av., protested the improvement on the grounds that his property would not be increased in value because of the improvement, and pointed out that it was unfair that one receiving little or no benefit should be assessed equally with those receiving a greater benefit.

A motion was also carried by council that the 30 day period for the payment of cash on the street improvement assessments be extended, the length of time to be decided at the next meeting of council. Following suggestion by James Cooney that something be done for the improvement of Songer av., a motion was made that the stone taken from Irving st. during its improvement be placed on Songer av.

In case Marion county quints win first round matches, the following games will be played Saturday morning: Green Camp vs. Morral; Waldo vs. winner of Alexandria-Grandview Heights game, St. Mary's vs. winner of New Dover-Millersport game.

EXPECT CHRISTIANS TO SWEEP PENNANT

Team Defeats Trinity Baptists in One-Sided Contest

Unless something radical happens in the closing series of games next Tuesday night the Central Christian cage five is going to cop the second round of the Intermediate Sunday school basketball league which completed its fourth round of games last night at the Y. At the present time the C.C.'s are in first place with four won and none lost while their nearest rival is one game in the rear.

Last night Christian shut out the Trinity Baptist five without a field goal, winning 20 to 5. Johnston scored eight points for the winners while Ward, Jones and McKeever made fouls to score the losers' points. The score at the half was 11 to 1.

Presbyterian and Epworth staged the thriller of the night when the former came out on the long end of 14 to 13 score. Sharkey Will Enter Ring Tonight 2 To 1 Favorite To Win Over Bill Stribling

Experience Gives Jack Edge: Little Money Being Bet

BY SID MERCER

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 27—Jack Sharkey will enter the ring at Flamingo park tonight a strong favorite over Young Stribling because of his experience against strong opposition, weight advantage and a general impression that Stribling has not fully recovered from the injury that interrupted his training last week.

It isn't much of a betting fight for the reason that all of the speculative gentry from the north want to back Sharkey. The price on the Bostonian has fluctuated from 8 to 5 to 6 to 5. Some 2 to 1 money was quoted this morning and it appears that this price will have to be offered to unloosen the southern bankrolls.

No Cash Up

The man on the street seems to like Stribling as well as Sharkey but that is because a large number of visitors from south of the Mason and Dixon line are pulling for their standard bearer. But those enthusiasts are not backing up their talk with cash.

Not more than five of the northern experts pick Strib and only one southerner, the sports editor of a little paper in North Carolina—has come out for Sharkey. Sentiment seems to rule the selections as well as the betting.

Sharkey Looks Good

Sharkey has every outward appearance of an athlete in splendid condition and has been much more impressive in his boxing than Stribling who never has had much experience in marking time before a big bout. Stribling's ordinary training consists of a fight or two every week and lots of traveling between.

STRIBLING

SHARKEY

The usual last minute bear reports were floating around last night. About 10 o'clock a rumor that Sharkey had injured himself at the Roman pools on the beach late yesterday afternoon struck press headquarters and caused a commotion. After his limbering up exercises at the Miami Kennel club late yesterday afternoon Sharkey took a plunge at the pools. Somebody saw him slip on a stone step and from that the rumor grew into a story that he had sustained a bad fall and cracked his elbow.

Jack had retired when the boys at press headquarters telephoned his suite at the Fleetwood hotel but he got up and personally killed the rumor.

"THEY Faw Down and Go Boom!"

That's the chant that is being sung by followers of the Senior Sunday school cage league following Central Christians' defeat by the Trinity Baptists last night, 34 to 25. It was the C. C.'s first setback of the season and the victory sent the winning team into undisputed first place with one more series of games to be played in the second and final half of play. Baptists must defeat Waldo to cinch the second half championship, for if they lose to Waldo while Christians wallop United Brethren as they are expected to do the old loop will be tied up tighter than the proverbial drunk on New Year's eve.

Failure to stop "Happy" Applegett and Charlie Osterholt, Baptist center and forward, cost Christians a chance to cop last night's fray, which was the first of three games played last night at the Y. M. C. A. Applegett sunk five fielders and three fouls for 13 points while Osterholt made four field goals and one free throw. W. Merchant, who led the loop in individual scoring in the first half of play, played a dandy floor game and pulled off some nice passes that resulted in scores. At that he managed to ring up two field goals and three fouls.

The vaunted Christian offense, which has been running rampant over other league teams in the past few games, failed to percolate last night against the strong defense of the winners. Ward, Christian forward, was roughed up a little too much but sank six fouls and two fielders to lead his team in scoring. Geissler was held scoreless the whole game while Gillis managed to sneak in two two pointers. The winners held an eight point advantage at the end of the half leading 18 to 10.

Epworth, led by Biddle and Partridge, who scored 15 counters apiece, had little trouble with the Waldo five in the second clash of the night. The game, which ended 36 to 25, was fast although the Waldo quint showed little signs of coming out of the slump that has characterized their play in the past three games.

A one-handed heave with about 30 seconds to play by Jacobs, United Brethren guard, gave his team a 27 to 26 win over the hard-fighting Calvary cagers in the finale of the night. Calvary had the better of the argument most of the way but the fast finish of the winners was too much. The losers held the long end of a 17 to 13 score at the half. Shults, U. B. center, led his team with eight points while Snyder, the Leviathan tipoff man on the Calvary quintet, led his team with seven points. Despite the fact that Snyder controlled the tip about four-thirds of the time, his team could not come through.

Sure Way to Get Rid of Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. Then you destroy it entirely.

To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

Copper, Steel and Amusements Lead in Early Trading

WALL STREET SEES HIGHER MONEY RATE

Close to $500,000,000 Will Be Needed for March Interest and Dividends

STEEL REMAINS SAME

Plans for Increase of Capitalization Not Yet Worked Out

BY W. S. COUSINS
Marion Star Staff Writer

NEW YORK Feb. 27—The copper, steel and amusement-company stocks led the move to higher prices in the early trading today. After the close of Tuesday's market the Steel Corporation announced its plan for the increase of its capitalization to 1¼ billion dollars and the extinguishment of the bonded debt, but since the conditions for the issuance of the new stocks have not been worked out, there was nothing on which to base a new move in the stock, and "big steel" sold fractionally above and below 157 in this period

Close to $500,000,000 will be needed for the March interest and dividend settlements, in preparation for which the banks are expected to make heavy calls on the call loan market. The renewal rate of 8 per cent. was unchanged from yesterday, but Wall Street looked for a higher rate before the end of the day.

Anaconda, at the head of the copper stocks, forged ahead to a new high above 140, the highest price on record and a total gain of close to 85 points since the middle of 1928. Kennecott, Cerro De Pasco, American Smelting and other well known copper shares continued their spectacular upward move. Since the close of Tuesday's market copper metal sold in the New York market at 18½ cents a pound, and in the exports markets at 18¾ cents.

Strength of Loew's Inc., which jumped another 3 points to 81½, accompanied rumors of a merger with Warner Brothers. The shorts were again crowded in the oil stocks, pushing up the prices of Pan-American Mexican Seaboard, Marland and other well known oils.

Cotton

NEW YORK Feb. 27—Cotton futures opened unchanged to 6 points higher today. March sold at 20.13C, May 20.40C. July 20.06C, October 19.87C, October (new) 19.79C and December 19.82C.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

Price of strawberries, the fruit looked upon as a luxury at this time of year, took a sudden tumble this morning in Marion markets when a new shipment of the berries from Florida arrived. A few days ago this fruit was selling for 70 cents a quart but now it is on the market at 50 and 55 cents a quart, although merchants say that there is a small demand even at the lower price.

No other changes were reported in any department of local markets this morning, although a few changes are expected in the meat division Thursday. Merchants say that the provision market will probably remain the same until later in the week.

TODAY'S REVIEW OF YESTERDAY'S GRAIN

CHICAGO, Feb. 27—A strong corn market, in which prices advanced steadily to close around 2c higher, featured the local trade in grains yesterday. It checked the early carryover from the previous day of liquidation in the wheat market, which then, with the pressure removed, rallied sharply on short covering and reinstatement of long holdings.

Closing prices for corn showed net advances for the day of 1⅞@2¼. Wheat finished ½@1c higher, a rally of approximately 2c from the low point. Oats closed ¼@⅜c higher, and rye was ⅝@1⅛c up.

Trade Is Bullish

Action of the grain market yesterday left little doubt that the majority of the trade as well as a broad outside interest are bullish toward the markets. With the shortage of grains in Europe and prospects of damage to the growing crop, buying power continues despite the present weakness of the cash situation which led to Monday's break.

Locals purchased corn at the outset yesterday on its comparative firmness in the face of Monday's wheat break. They were backed by a larger demand from commission houses and the fact that the balance of the news was in favor of the constructive action.

Facts and figures regarding the movement showed that it is considerably lighter, with expectations of further declines. Lighter receipts here and in the Southwest steadied the cash market; there was some export business reported and a great deal more interest on the part of exporters, who were reported buying in Southwest markets.

Broomhall advised of unfavorable rains in the north of Argentina, which led to purchases of futures in their markets as wet weather will interfere with harvesting. Spot corn at Kansas City was firm, and the commercial demand in the local market was called improved. Country offerings were nil, even at the advance.

Wheat Opens Lower

Wheat opened lower with cables showing Liverpool following our previous day's decline, closing ¾@1d lower. Liquidation and selling continued, but offerings were well taken and when short covering on the strength in corn ensued, prices moved up easily.

There were several outstanding factors in the wheat market. First, the eastern buying, which has been one of the principal factors behind the recent advance of 17c from the new point, was again in evidence. Second, while the weather was favorable for the crop, the Kansas weekly report and a statement by a local concern's crop specialist strengthened bulls' conviction that damage has been incurred by the drop. And, last but not least, the main futures administration's combination of open interest at the close Monday showed 136,253,000 bu, an increase of about 700,000 since Saturday, and probably the highest on record, despite the previous day's break.

Foreign advices were largely bullish with reiterations of statements regarding heavy feeding of wheat to live stock in lieu of corn. Bradstreet's available supply table shows a decrease of 2,461,000 bu for the week, and Canadian visible stocks declined 1,419,000 bu.

In the cash market wheat was unchanged to 2c lower, corn steady to 1c higher; oats unchanged, rye dull, barley steady.

Cars inspected were: Wheat, 72 corn, 162, oats 15, rye 0, barley, 9

LUBRICATION
The ease of performance and lasting quality of your car depends on proper lubrication.
Freezing weather and wet streets cause Shackel Bolts, Springs and all Brake Mechanism to corrode and rust which leads to hard riding and excessive wear on all working parts.
Bring your car in and let us inspect it. Our Greasing Service is incomparable and we use a Graphite Grease on all shackel bolts which prevents sticking and keeps them properly lubricated in all weather conditions.

LOANS UP TO $500

Some folks have such modest dispositions that it embarrasses them to meet their bills.
Then just imagine the embarrassment of poor Harry Blushredder who had twelve bills and three installments to pay all at one time. But it's not only annoying—it's mighty near impossible sometimes to keep up a number of bills and still save something for a rainy day and make any head-way toward financial independence.
You can readily understand the advantages of only one place to pay. Make this one place The City Loan and you will soon learn that here is an ideal money-to-loan concern for all folks, meek or bold, who prefer to borrow on their own responsibility.
